Rockets are Tested By Apollo Crewmen

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 9 space pilots jarred their ship twice with jolts of rocket power today for two basic reasons.

—To see if the awkward moon cab locked to Apollo's nose would survive the shaking.

—And to make the command ship easier to handle in any space rescue attempts that might be needed in risky maneuvers to come.

James A. McDivitt and David R. Scott, both Air Force colonels, and civilian Russell L. Schweickart literally wagged their rocket engine to test how well their auto pilot controlled the ship.

They talked more brightly after a good night's sleep.

Mission Control reported the second rocket burn was "nice and stable... They are flying it manually now and it looks good... Cut-off ... initial look at the onboard computer looks like we're right in there close."

The astronauts quickly and coolly checked their figures with the ground.

Scott, asked by the ground whether he had much trouble handling the controls during the rocket burn, said he found it rather easy.

For one brief moment between tests, the astronauts kidded about the hoses that provide oxygen and take away used air from their space suits.

"Hey Smokey," McDivitt asked Stuart Roosa, ground communicator, "have you ever been attacked by a band of wild elephants? ... You ought to see what it looks like in here with these six big black hoses."

Roosa laughed and Scott added, "Did you ever dream about octopuses?"

The second rocket burst of the day lasted nearly five minutes, ending at 12:23 p.m. EST. It boosted the combined Apollo-moon cab structure to an orbit ranging from a high of about 315 miles to a low of 125 miles. It also improved the earth track of the spaceship and its angle to the sun's light for Thursday's planned spacewalk.

The first rocket firing was at 9:12 a.m., a two minute burst. It

Autobahn Is Closed By Reds

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany, campaigning against a West German presidential election to be held in West Berlin Wednesday, closed the main autobahn between this city and West Germany at both ends for two hours and then reopened it late today.

Promptly at 4 p.m., helmeted East German soldiers erected barriers at Helmstedt, the West German border crossing point, and at the West Berlin autobahn entrance 110 miles away across Communist territory.

Then, promptly at 6 p.m., the East Germans opened the barriers and stalled traffic began moving again.

The shutdown developed about three hours after West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger flew in to take part, as one member of the 1,036-man Federal Assembly, in the election of a successor to President Heinrich Luebke, who is retiring.

It was the most serious in a series of harassments of Berlin access ways in a war of nerves over the election.

U.S. authorities said they would approach the Russians directly about the situation. The Western Big Three hold the Soviet Union, not East Germany, is responsible for free movement in and out of West Berlin.

Police said motor traffic on two other highways, leading to Hof in the south and Hamburg in the north, remained unimpeded and railway and air traffic was normal.

The main autobahn runs between West Berlin and Helmstedt.

Earlier in the day customs officials at Helmstedt, on the western end of the autobahn, reported that, though eastbound cars kept moving, traffic headed west was halted for two hours inside East Germany.

Travelers reported observing heavy Soviet and East German troop convoys along the autobahn at the time—between about 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Warsaw Pact maneuvers are under way in the area.

At least half of West Germany's 1,036 presidential electors had flown to West Berlin without incident by Monday night, although the Soviet Union warned it could not guarantee the safety of U.S., British and French planes carrying delegates to the Federal Assembly that will elect a new president Wednesday.

The Western allies responded to the Soviet threat by reiterating they hold the Russians responsible for security in the air corridors.

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger was scheduled to arrive today, probably on a U.S. military plane.

A force of 8,000 policeman, equal to the number that guarded President Nixon during his visit last Thursday, stood by to guard against demonstrations or other actions around the site of the Federal Assembly, the East Prussian hall of the West Berlin fair grounds.

Ulbricht again dangled his offer to grant Easter wall passes to West Berliners who have not been able to cross into East Berlin to see relatives since 1966. The offer was contingent on Bonn shifting the election out of West Berlin, and Ulbricht rejected West Germany's counter offer to switch the election site in exchange for a more extended transit agreement.

Governor To Probe Food Lack

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes announced today he plans to appoint his wife to head a task force to determine whether actual hunger exists in Missouri and what should be done about it.

He said he and Mrs. Hearnes concluded simultaneously that the problem should be investigated.

"Maybe it's not a problem," he told his news conference. "I hope it's not."

Hearnes said he was not talking about malnutrition, which is known to exist—"I'm talking about lack of enough for the body to survive."

Hearnes said his wife, Betty, and other members of the task force not yet chosen will visit all areas of the state to determine whether hunger exists.

Before they start their work, he said welfare director Proctor N. Carter would be consulted and the Department of Community Affairs would get any information available from mayors and county courts.

"According to what we find out," he said, "action courses would follow that, dictated by the findings."

The governor said his determination to investigate followed widely publicized reports that starvation conditions exist in some South Carolina areas.

Asked about pending tax proposals, the governor declined comment until the Legislature takes some action.

Sirhan Admits Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a tone of voice that was almost casual, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan said on the witness stand that he took the life of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The 24-year-old Jordanian had admitted before that he was the senator's assassin, but that was in stormy sessions out of the hearing of the jury. By contrast he was composed and polite Monday as he faced the eight men and four women who could sentence him to death.

He smiled often and grinned broadly at times.

"It is alleged that on the 5th day of June, 1968, you killed and murdered Sen. Robert Francis Kennedy, a human being," began Grant B. Cooper, the leading member of the defense legal team. "Did you ... shoot Sen. Kennedy?"

"Yes sir," said Sirhan.

The white haired lawyer then went down the list of five others wounded in the wild fusillade that felled the senator.

Q. Did you shoot Paul Schrade?

A. That is what the indictment reads. I might have.

Q. You heard the testimony here?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you aware of the fact that you shot Mr. Schrade?

A. I was not aware of anything.

The answer was in line with the defense contention that Sirhan was in a trance and out of contact with reality when he shot Kennedy.

Sirhan, eager to testify, often blurted out his answer before Cooper finished the question. It

New City Official To Help Drinkers

A new city office, dealing with problem drinkers, was established by council action at the Sedalia City Council meeting Monday night. The head of the office will be called a "counselor for problem drinkers," and will receive $75 a month.

R.M. Battles, 1715 South Beacon, was named counselor for the program, which was described by Battles as a pilot effort in Missouri.

Main objective of the program, Battles said, is to make contact with anyone in Sedalia or Pettis County with an alcoholic problem, counsel with this individual and help him to help himself by obtaining aid through a hospital, through Alcoholics Anonymous, or one of the other agencies dealing with the problem of alcoholism.

Battles said he will work through employers, social agencies, churches, law enforcement agencies and other groups in making contacts with persons having a drinking problem. After contact is made his office will act as a liaison agent to assist the individual in obtaining help.

All counseling will be on a voluntary basis, Battles said, and all matters involving the individual will be held on a strictly confidential basis.

The office location for the new agency will be announced later, Battles said.

Say Attacks Will Bring Retaliation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has served notice that continued indiscriminate shelling of South Vietnamese cities will bring both political and military consequences to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Monday the "consequences of these attacks" are the enemy's responsibility, and State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey confirmed that the consequences could be "both political and military."

It was the first time the State Department had said specifically the series of enemy attacks might result in military action, although a halt to such bombardment was one of the points former President Johnson included in the "understanding" he announced at the same time he said the bombing of North Vietnam would end last Nov. 1.

As of Monday, McCloskey said at his daily press briefing, "Everything is under review, all aspects of policy, military and political."

President Nixon has not yet stated what steps he will take if he determines that North Vietnam deliberately violated the understanding, but he likely will be asked about it tonight when he reports to the nation on his eight-day tour of European capitals.

As he left for Europe, Nixon said the key to the problem was whether the enemy was actually shelling the cities "because if that happens it requires some action on our part." When it became clear the attacks were shellings, the State Department said a response would depend on how long they continued.

In his statement Monday, Rogers denounced the third enemy rocket attack on Saigon within nine days as a "reminder of the callous attitude with which the enemy regards the lives of innocent noncombatants in the Vietnam war."

Rogers said that while the "indiscriminate shelling of Saigon and other cities is costing additional severe casualties to the enemy," it will bring them no military advantage nor will it succeed in putting additional pressure on the United States and South Vietnam in the Paris negotiations.

Rogers said the "consequences of these attacks are the responsibility of the other side and they clearly raise the question as to its true desire to work toward a peaceful settlement of the conflict."

President Johnson said he halted the bombing after reaching an understanding with North Vietnam that expanded peace talks would start promptly. He also said talks could not be held while cities were being shelled or the demilitarized zone violated.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House foreign affairs subcommittee on the Far East, said North Vietnam is testing the new Nixon administration "to see if it is going to be tough or is willing to sit back and let them get away with the attack."

Foreign Policy is Limit Of Nixon Report Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon reports to the American people tonight in a nationally broadcast news conference keyed to his European trip but likely to touch on new tensions in Vietnam and Berlin.

The White House said the hour-long news conference starting at 9 p.m. would be restricted solely to foreign policy issues with the President entertaining no questions about domestic matters.

White House newsmen could not recall when any similar restrictions had been placed on reporters.

The news conference was the only item on Nixon's schedule for the day besides an early morning briefing for congressional leaders of both parties.

Nixon met with the bipartisan group for more than an hour, then continued preparation of his statement to begin tonight's news conference.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Zeigler said that questions need not be confined to the European trip and they seemed likely to range the field of international affairs.

Nixon was certain to be asked whether the United States is considering any retaliatory action as a result of renewed rocket attacks on Saigon.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said in a statement Monday "the consequences of these attacks are the responsibility of the other side and they clearly raise a question as to its true desire to work toward a peaceful settlement of the conflict."

State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said in response to a question that the consequences could be "both political and military."

Nixon is also likely to be asked to assess the situation in West Berlin raised by the Soviet Union's disclaimer of responsibility for the safety of any planes flying West German electors to the city.

The United States and its allies have told Moscow that it remains responsible for the safety of air traffic despite its effort to avoid such responsibility.

Nixon obviously views his talks with heads of states during his week's trip as having strengthened U.S. ties with its traditional allies.

Industrial Department Report Made

The effects of a proposed state utility tax hike, publicity for the city, medical facilities and industrial building capabilities were among the subjects mentioned by Bill Hall, industrial development director, in his monthly report to the City Council Monday night.

During the month Hall reported he talked to the Cole Camp Chamber of Commerce on area industrial development, and testified as an expert witness before the Senate Ways and Means Committee on the effects of a utility tax hike to raise money needed to carry on state programs for the next two years. This piece of legislation is pending action in the State Legislature.

Hall noted that some Sedalia industries will be featured in the Harbinger Magazine for March, published by the State Department of Industrial Development.

In local industrial development activities, two plant location studies were presented to prospects, and one prospect, seeking a 20,000-square-foot building, was notified the city has the capabilities of constructing such a building as quickly as an existing building could be renovated to suit the prospect.

The department has been working with Bothwell Hospital in compiling economic data to be used in obtaining funds for possible hospital expansion.

Hall noted that the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development Annual Conference will be held in Jefferson City April 10-11. Anyone wishing to attend should contact Hall. Industrial Appreciation Week in Sedalia will be held in June. Hall is urging all local industries to participate.

Red Tanks, Armor Repulsed By Jets

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam sent a column of tanks and other armored vehicles deeper into South Vietnam than ever before today, but American bombers drove them back from a remote Special Forces camp in the central highlands.

The U.S. Command said there were at least 10 Russian tanks and several other armored vehicles in the column. More than 30 American bombers destroyed at least two of the tanks and three other armored vehicles, American spokesmen reported.

The rest of the column apparently retreated into Cambodia or Laos with the U.S. warplanes in pursuit.

It was the first time in a year that enemy tanks were reported in action and also the heaviest action reported in the highlands so far in the enemy's spring offensive, now in its 10th day.

Elsewhere, more than 20 rocket and mortar attacks were reported overnight, but a U.S. spokesman said the offensive seems to have "leveled off." Military analysts said the first phase had ended in the area of Saigon and its approaches, but they added that the enemy is believed preparing for a more violent second phase, which might begin this weekend or early next week.

The target for the North Vietnamese tank column was the Ben Het Special Forces Camp, 24 miles northwest of Kontum and seven miles southeast of the tri-border region where South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos meet.

A spokesman said reconnaissance helicopters and photos identified the tanks as light Soviet amphibious PT76's, weighing about 15 tons and armed with a 76mm gun and a machine gun. Earlier reports had identified them as Soviet T34-85's which are twice as big and carry an 85mm gun.

It was the second time the North Vietnamese had used tanks to spearhead an assault on a border outpost. In February, 1968, infantrymen moving behind a column of 15 PT76's and armored personnel carriers overran the Lang Vei Special Forces Camp near Khe Sanh, in the northwest corner of South Vietnam. Three of the tanks and four of the armored personnel carriers were destroyed before

'Boarding House' Cartoon Ends With a Death

William Freyse, who drew the "Our Boarding House" cartoon panel for 30 years, died in Tucson, Ariz., Monday.

The cartoon panel has been carried in The Democrat and The Capital since its inception, week days and Sunday. For the past few years the strip has been carried in The Democrat-Capital Sunday comic section.

Freyse took over the cartoon in 1939, when Bela Zaboly, former artist, took over the "Popeye" strip.

The last daily panel will appear March 15. The Sunday panel will end April 20.

Says Ship's Seizure Couldn't Be Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, said today the capture of the Pueblo could not have been prevented despite actions taken after the intelligence ship's first message that it was about to be boarded by the North Koreans.

Adm. Moorer, in a prepared statement, also told a special House armed services subcommittee that time, distance and approaching darkness led to the decision that the Pueblo could not be rescued by any military action before it had been taken into Wonsan Harbor in North Korea.

Among the actions taken after the receipt of the first message from the Pueblo, Moorer said, was the ordering of the USS Enterprise and USS Truxton, located 600 miles south of Wonsan, to proceed north at best speed.

He said the commander of the 7th Fleet also ordered three destroyers to join the carrier Enterprise and the Truxton, a high speed transport.

The Pacific Fleet commander in chief ordered a destroyer to proceed to a position off Wonsan Harbor, Moorer said.

The chief of naval operations also told the committee that the commander of the 5th Air Force, upon receiving a secret telephone call, "took preparatory steps to deploy available fighter aircraft to the area."

"However, a number of factors which included time, distance and approaching darkness led to the decision that Pueblo could not be rescued by any military action before it had entered Wonsan harbor," Moorer said.

Blackwell is Defeated On Utilities Tax Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) The Missouri Senate beat down today a proposed 4 per cent tax on the gross receipts of utilities. The vote was 9-24.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, President Pro Tem of the Senate and sponsor of the bill as part of a $110 million tax package, immediately shelved the bill in order to take up one increasing corporate income taxes.

That bill, too, had to be laid over when it became apparent it would produce another long word battle.

Blackwell made it clear at the outset that if his utility tax plan failed, the Senate would be given a chance to consider the income tax proposal. Both measures are linked to other bills to raise cigarette, beer, wine, liquor and corporate franchise taxes.

Blackwell's original utility tax proposal called for a 5 per cent tax the first year increasing to 10 per cent the second year, this original measure was the one shelved when his substitute 4 per cent tax was defeated.

The utility tax plan was opposed as a burden on the little man and a threat to large industries and Missouri's industrial expansion.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said the proposed utility tax actually would cost the consumer more than a one-cent increase in the sales tax.

Early in what looked like a long argument, Blackwell said firms like Moranda Aluminum at Armco Steel at Kansas City are the ones that have been screaming the loudest about his bill.

He said there isn't a chance they would move out of Missouri because "the tax climate is too good for them—they couldn't afford to leave."

Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, sponsor of the corporate income tax bill waiting in the wings, opposed Blackwell's plan from the start. He said the average domestic consumer is paying $40 to $50 a month in utility bills and a utility tax would be a heavy burden on him.

Blackwell said his tax package, with accompanying bills to boost cigarette, beer, wine and liquor and corporate franchise taxes would produce enough to carry the state through two years without another tax increase.

He said his estimates were predicated on the belief that $10-12 million could be trimmed from general revenue expenditures in the budget of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who has asked the Legislature for an additional $80 million to be raised from income tax increases.

Monday a bill to take county assessors off the fee system and another to allow buses to drive 70 miles per hour on four-lane highways got first round

Mayor Walker Will Veto Zoning Change Ordinance

By ED VAUGHAN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Mayor Ralph Walker stated that he would not sign the ordinance passed by the City Council Monday night which would have rezoned the property between the Thompson Hills Shopping Center and the west city limits from R-1 (residential) to C-3, or commercial.

When questioned about his intentions immediately after the council meeting, Walker said that he intended to return the ordinance to the council unsigned at its next regular meeting. This is in effect a veto.

A vote of 6 to 2 by the council will be needed to override the veto, according to Walker. The ordinance was passed 5-2 by the council Monday night. Councilman Leo Letourneau was absent from the meeting.

The Planning and Zoning Commission previously recommended that the request by E. W. and Sylvia Thompson be rejected. However, the council passed a motion to draw up the ordinance at its last meeting.

Mayor Walker said he would explain his actions when he returned the unsigned ordinance to the council on March 17.

Earlier in the meeting the council approved a request to rezone a lot on the south side of Spring Street just west of Park Avenue from R-1 to C-3. It rejected a request by Frank B. Neal to rezone a lot on South Limit from R-1 to C-3.

Bids of $250 by the James T. Moore Co., and $512 by the Tri-State Scale and Equipment Co., of Kansas, for the old city scales were turned over the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee for acceptance or rejection.

The resignation of Vincent T. Sullivan, Sedalia fireman, effective April 1, following 25 years of service in that capacity, was accepted and approved.

A request by W. A. McVey, chairman of the building committee of the East Broadway Christian Church, to close the alley between 15th and 16th Streets between Center and Porter and to reopen 15th between Center and Park for the purpose of establishing a church there was approved.

A request to install curb and guttering at 1807 East 14th by private contract was also approved by the council.

Bob Fritz was given authority by the council to represent the city in negotiations for easements to the southwest sewer lagoon. The negotiations will be subject to the approval of the council.

An ordinance prohibiting the parking of vehicles between the curb and the right-of-way lines on U.S. highways in Sedalia was approved. This ordinance pertains to Broadway west from Limit and Limit between Ninth and 32nd Streets.

An ordinance making it unlawful to operate a vehicle over 35 miles per hour on West Broadway to Sunset Drive; 40

Generation Gap Behind Student Revolts

NEW YORK (AP) — A sociologist who has analyzed student rebellions from Berkeley to Berlin says the common cause is conflict between the generations and that such uprisings tend to be self-destructive.

"I understand their hopes, their idealism, but my feeling is that unless we deal with it realistically and call attention to this irrationality, this self-destructive element, we'll never be able to cope with it," says Lewis S. Feuer.

In an interview, Dr. Feuer discussed the student rebellion —its causes, its dangers, its future.

Feuer is a professor of sociology at the University of Toronto and a former professor of philosophy at the University of California, where his observations about that uprising were gathered first hand.

His book on student unrest, "Conflict of Generations," will be published this month by Basic Books.

Here are excerpts from the interview:

Q. What is the underlying cause of rebellion by students?

A. Well, the phenomenon has been a recurrent one in modern history. Almost every generation in Europe and the United States has seen student uprisings of various sorts . . . The underlying cause in the present student revolts in the United States, apart from the basic factor of the recurrent theme of generational revolt, lies, of course, in the profound significance the racial problem has acquired in America. There has really been no major student rebellion on any campus in the United States where this issue was not somewhere in the background. One finds that student rebellions only take place in situations where the elder generation for some reason or other has lost its moral authority, it becomes de-authoritized. Now in part in the United States the older generation is somewhat de-authoritized because the racial situation has developed the feeling that liberalism hasn't altogether lived up to its principles. And also it has been partially de-authoritized because it has conducted a losing war. I think if the Vietnamese war had a relatively successful outcome you would not have the loss of authority which confronted the national administration.

Q. Prior to our time, the United States has never had any significant student movement. Why?

A. . . . As I say, one doesn't have a student movement emerging unless there has been a de-authoritization of the older generation. . . Until relatively recently, this sort of de-authoritization had not occurred, although there was a great deal of social ferment. The elder generation was credited with great triumphs. They were the ones who were leading in the conquest of the continent, and the elder generation had to its credit one great victory after another. Now it wasn't until after the second world war that one encountered this phenomenon of the elder generation confronted with problems which were in magnitude far beyond anything which had been encountered before. The great string of victories was broken. . .

Q. Your book seems to be critical of student rebels and those who sympathize with them. Is it your premise that in these situations the student generally is at fault and has no grievances?

A. There are grievances, but there are two ways of meeting grievances, rational ways and irrational ways. Because at the same time they arise as well from this motivation of generational struggle, the desire to humilitate the older generation, to uproot them, you have a kind of super imposition on whatever they do of compulsive irrationality. In the history of student movements we find that their idealism has always tended to become self-destructive.

Q. How significant is Communist participation in the student rebellions?

A. It depends on what one means by Communist participation. If you mean the actual Communist party, it has not played a very important role. The chief student leaders, for instance, at Berkeley or at Columbia or at Harvard are not persons who would regard themselves as sympathizers of the Communist party. The Trotskyites on some campuses actually have more members than the Stalinists. And the Maoists tend to provoke some of the more extreme actions. The number is small, but adhering to the policy of provoking violence to the maximum. The movement as a whole certainly is influenced by an ideology which finally is Marxism. It turns out that their criticisms of our society are the same ones that Lenin made.

Q. Why has the student movement in this country taken on such an anti-American flavor?

A. Anti-Americanism is sort of the ideology of rejecting all the values and commitments of your father. And if you're in generational revolt on a very deep-seated level you're going to be anti-American in proportion to the intensity of your generational rebellion.

Q. What is the direction of the student movement in this country today?

A. They themselves don't know in what direction they want to lead the country. They say very frankly they don't have a conception of what the new society is going to be like. They don't want to commit themselves altogether to the Soviet picture, but in reality—sometimes they say they have an anarchistic element, an existential element—in reality they are finally playing into the hands of totalitarian forces. Because if over a long period of time you keep provoking the breakdown of law, a breakdown of respect for the values of work and decency and political ethics, if you disrupt the orderly workings of society to a point where people finally become desperate, then you are finally going to play into the hands of totalitarian elements. There is a strong Fascist element in the student movement. No student movement in history has finally been friendly to academic freedom.

Enemy is Expected to Launch Second Phase of Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — The first phase of the Viet Cong's spring offensive in the Saigon area has ended, and the enemy appears to be preparing for a more violent second phase, U.S. military analysts said today.

After going through mountains of captured documents and prisoner of war interrogations, U.S. officers charged with defending Saigon believe the second phase is scheduled for this weekend or early next week.

But "Phase Two is still shaky and may not go," one highly placed officer said.

Until the second phase of the offensive opens, if it does, the enemy is expected to concentrate on rocket and mortar attacks in an attempt to keep allied forces busy while the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese reconsolidate and reposition their forces.

The analysts say allied spoiling actions are disrupting the enemy's plans to a certain degree, and "maybe he will and maybe he won't" launch the second phase as scheduled.

The current allied assessment is that the Communist command is capable of division-size ground attacks against the sprawling Long Binh-Bien Hoa military complex, the biggest in Vietnam, 12 to 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

The enemy is also capable of multiregimental ground attacks on towns and bases west and northwest of Saigon, particularly the provincial capital of Tay Ninh City and the district capital of Trang Bang. Hundreds of allied reinforcements have been deployed to those areas in anticipation of enemy assaults.

Military analysts also report the enemy is capable of mortar and sapper attacks on the Saigon military district, of ground assaults by local force troops, and also could launch widespread simultaneous attacks on provincial and district capitals.

"The second phase will probably be another round of heavier attacks by fire (rockets and mortars) and also some ground attacks," said one expert.

At least one analyst feels, however, that Saigon itself won't come under serious attack until a third and final phase of the offensive.

He said the second phase might last 10 days with another pause then for the enemy to regroup.

This analyst said the first phase of the enemy offensive which began Feb. 23 lasted about five days in Saigon and the 11 provinces around it, which make up the 3rd Corps Area.

"It was a lot less than what we really planned for," he said.

Analysts said the Communist command in the first phase committed elements of only four of the 13 regiments in the four divisions threatening the 3rd Corps area. An enemy regiment totals about 1,200 men at full strength.

During the first week of the offensive, U.S. officers said, the enemy initiated about 300 attacks in the 3rd Corps Area compared to 47 in the previous week, when the Viet Cong's Tet cease-fire was supposed to be in force.

The sources said allied forces killed more than 2,000 enemy troops in the area and captured more than 250.

Capitol Highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has sent Congress a proposed bill to set up federal health and safety standards for coal mines and at the same time announced a new program of grants to help the states develop their own programs.

The legislation would provide heavy fines for companies violating the standards.

Nixon also announced a series of administrative orders increasing the number of mine inspectors substantially and expanding research into the "black lung" disease which results from inhaling coal dust, plus other mine hazards.

His bill is similar to one proposed by the Johnson administration last year, but the key difference is that it would not impose fines against individual miners for safety violations.

Mining companies could be fined up to $10,000 for each violation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says he subscribes without reservation to Post Office Department programs of equal employment opportunity.

Blount, the only Deep South member of President Nixon's Cabinet and the first member from Alabama in 75 years, urged postal workers in a policy statement to strive for total racial equality on the job and in their communities.

He spoke of "achieving equality as a never-ending crusade" and declared, "We cannot be satisfied with past achievements."

Among his suggestions were that postal workers initiate job-training programs, speak up for fair housing, and help solve local transportation and child care problems.

At the same time, he proposed that postal officials re-examine department requirements for skilled and unskilled jobs and view complaints and grievances as "opportunities for correction and not as a burden."

ACCUMULATED ICE on decks, rigging and superstructure of a ship is an occupational hazard for Arctic fishermen. As the ice cover builds up, the center of gravity moves upwards and the ship at the same time is forced lower into the water, losing freeboard. If no action can be taken to check the icing, the ship will capsize as many have in northern waters. This photo by Gretar Oddsson shows the Icelandic trawler Rodull safe in port.

Woman Is Said Favorite As Israeli Prime Minister

JERUSALEM (AP) — Mrs. Golda Meir, the Milwaukee schoolteacher who became Israel's leading woman politician, looked today like a shoo-in for interim prime minister of the Jewish nation.

The 70-year-old grandmother won overwhelming endorsement from the ruling Labor party's leadership bureau Monday, and reliable sources said she was virtually certain to accept the post.

Mrs. Meir had been reported reluctant to take the job because of her health, but she told an interviewer from the Milwaukee Journal Sunday: "I feel strong enough . . . It's just the prime minister's job is horrible, especially at a time like this when the country is in a state of continuing hostility with the Arabs."

The choice of Mrs. Meir was another rebuff for Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and a boost for Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon, Dayan's chief rival for the top job after the parliamentary elections in November. Mrs. Meir is a member of the Mapai faction of the Labor party which is favorable to Allon and opposes Dayan.

Party officials said Mrs. Meir would announce her decision Thursday, the end of the official mourning period for Prime Minister Levi Eshkol, who died Wednesday.

Mrs. Meir is the former Goldie Mabovitz, whose family emigrated to the United States from Russia when she was eight years old and settled in Milwaukee. She was married to Morris Myerson and emigrated with him to Palestine in 1921.

A pioneer in the women's labor movement and the Haganah, Mrs. Meir headed the political department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine for the two years before independence and after independence became Israel's first minister to Moscow. She joined David Ben-Gurion's cabinet in 1949 as minister of labor, then in 1956 became foreign minister, a post she held for 10 years.

After her retirement from the Cabinet in 1956, Mrs. Meir became secretary-general of the Mapai. She retired from the party post last July.

She changed her name to Meir in 1956 when President David Ben-Gurion asked all his Cabinet ministers to use Hebrew names. Meir means "gives light."

Elsewhere in the Middle East, Iraq charged Monday that Israel's report of more spy executions to be held this week in Baghdad was "a big lie." Twenty-two persons, including nine Jews, were executed by Iraq in January and February on charges of spying for Israel, and Israel said during the weekend that more hangings were scheduled Monday or today.

The U.S. State Department said it hoped the reports of "additional executions in Baghdad prove unfounded." Carl Bartch, a department spokesman, said: "As we made clear on two recent occasions, we are concerned on humanitarian grounds by the circumstances of these trials and executions."

Police sources in Jerusalem said two Arab women had admitted that they dynamited a crowded Jerusalem supermarket Feb. 21, killing two Jews and wounding nine others.

The sources said a third girl confessed to planting explosives at the British consulate in Jerusalem. That blast five days after the supermarket bombing damaged an apartment but injured no one.

Crewman Tells About Threats On His Life

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — A North Korean guard ordered his shoes shined, and "I refused," says Radioman 2.C. Charles Henry Crandell Jr., 24, of the USS Pueblo.

"He called me out of ranks and put a gun to my head and started this playing-with-the-gun bit," continued Crandell, from El Reno, Okla.

"I still refused," Crandell said, "and then their duty officer came out and made him stop."

Crandell testified Monday before a Navy court of inquiry into the capture of the intelligence ship by the North Koreans last year and the behavior of its crew during 11 months of imprisonment.

Five intelligence specialists for the ship, two enginemen and a boatswain's mate were summoned to testify today.

The Navy said the court, in its seventh week, could end about the middle of next week. The Pueblo's captain, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, will be one of the last witnesses.

Bucher already has testified about the ship's capture and his torture during imprisonment. He has said he will have some final statements.

His attorney, E. Miles Harvey, plans a short closing statement, a Navy spokesman said, and will call witnesses on Bucher's behalf.

Ann Landers

Sliding Student Will Not Last

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Concerned Dad" who was deeply worried about the antics of his college student son. His outlook was gloomy, but I assure you, he doesn't know the half of it.

My husband, a newspaper reporter, has had occasion to see firsthand what goes on when the police pull a campus raid.

Do you know what a Mazola party is? The young men and women strip down to almost nothing, smear themselves with salad oil, lie in a pile on the floor and try to hold on to a member of the opposite sex. The ones who hold onto each other become partners for the night.

My suggestion to "Concerned Dad" (and other worried parents around the country) is this: When they get wind of junior's improper conduct, cut off the loot. Refuse flatly to subsidize his orgies. If a student is serious about wanting an education he can prove it by going to work and putting himself through.

I'm not a square old lady. I'm the mother of three young children. And I am keeping a copy of this letter so when my kids are of college age I will practice what I preach. — SPEAKING FOR MYSELF

Dear Speaking: In today's college setup, no kid can slide through on Mazola. He needs passing grades.

I agree that a father should not subsidize a goof-off, but if the kid is a total cipher the school will not keep him.

Dear Ann Landers: Get with it or quit writing. I am boiling mad over your plea to the American public to "leave a tip for the maid who has cleaned your hotel room."

When I travel I usually pay between $20 and $25 for a night's lodging. Why should I pay extra to have my room cleaned? I figure I'm entitled to a clean room because that's what I am paying for.

Pretty soon you'll suggest that John Q. Public tip the desk clerk for allowing him to register.

I deplore the racket called tipping. It's a means of pushing off on the sucker-consumer an expense that should be borne by the employer.

O.K., now you can throw this letter away. U GLAD I SAID IT

Dear Glad: So am I — and you weren't the only one who said it. I received hundreds of letters saying the same thing.

I deplore tipping, too. Furthermore I agree that the customer is shnooked into shouldering a financial responsibility that should be borne by the employer. I would gladly pay more for a meal or a room and dispense with tipping entirely, but unfortunately, maids, waiters, waitresses, bellhops and other people who perform services are not paid adequate salaries. They depend on tips to live, and until the system changes, I'll keep on tipping.

Confidential to Low Hemoglobin: Your problem sounds like an excess of lead in the stern, rather than a deficiency of iron in the blood. The reading you describe as "very low" is normal.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A Three-Year Program Of Tests For Concorde

TOULOUSE, France (AP) — After a successful maiden flight, the British-French Concorde, the western world's first supersonic airliner, began a three-year program of tests today.

Adverse weather delayed the first flight since Thursday, and the huge four-engine jet was forced to fly below 3,000 feet Sunday instead of around 12,000 fee. Increasing ground winds cut the scheduled 40-minute flight to 27. And the plane did not get over 350 miles an hour, though she is designed to fly at 1,400 m.p.h.

Nevertheless, chief test pilot Andre Turcat, 47, said the Concorde "behaved perfectly" in her 90-degree sweep around this area of southwest France. British government officials and aircraft executives called the flight a "soaring triumph."

Turcat said he plans to fly again in a few days, but the most critical tests of all—for sonic boom—are still more than a year away.

A British version wil fly from Bristol in six weeks.

The builders, Sud-Aviation of France and the British Aircraft Corp., hope to obtain air worthiness certificates by the end of 1972 so that the plane can go into service in 1973.

The first test flight came more than a year behind schedule and enabled the Soviet Union to launch the world's first supersonic airliner, the Tupolev 144, last Dec. 31.

The American supersonic airliner, the SST to be built by the Boeing Co., is still on the drawing board and isn't expected to make its first test flight before 1973.

The Concorde already has cost an estimated $720 million in research, and the total development cost may reach $2 billion. Sixteen airlines have taken options to buy 74 of the planes.

The Concorde is designed to carry 145 passengers and to make the flight from Paris to New York in about three hours instead of the present eight.

Scout News

Girl Scout Junior Troop 353, Horace Mann School, had a Mother's Party and Scouts' Own Ceremony recently. The Couger patrol was in charge of the program. The 10 Scout laws were recited as the girl lit a candle. "America" was played by two clarinetists, a flutist and a violinist. Each girl was presented with the four badges on which the troop had been working. The Butterfly patrol was in charge of refreshments, and the Roadrunner patrol presented the flag ceremony.

Troop 353 recently had a Valentine party with a troop from Heber Hunt School. The party was held at Wesley United Methodist Church. There were games and songs, and punch and cookies were served.

Several girls from Troop 353 attended the Scout Sing-a-long held at the Thompson Hills Mall on Feb. 22.

The troop is planning to start working in five different groups on the badges storyteller, health aid, hospitality, skater and books.

The cookie sale started Friday. Troop 353 Cookie Chairman is Mrs. Robert Stockwood.

Last week the troop stuffed envelopes for Easter Seals. There were approximately 2,750 envelopes stuffed and sealed for this drive.

New patrol leaders for the next few months are: Raodrunners, Cindy Allee and Leslie Landon, Cougers, Diana Johnson and Marjorie Steen and Butterflies, Brenda Twyman and Renee Evans. Leaders are Mrs. Gene Landon, Mrs. Earl Finley, Mrs. Don Steen and Mrs. John Cover. Senior Scout assisting is Annetta Grainger.

Will Sponsor World Day Of Prayer

Sedalia Church Women United will again sponsor the World Day of Prayer at 7:30 p.m. March 7 at the First Christian Church. Emphasis this year is being placed on the family worshipping together; hence, the evening service rather than the customary afternoon observance.

Speaker for World Day of Prayer will be Mrs. Edith H. Bryant, wife of Bishop Harrison J. Bryant, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal District of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Bryant, is the mother of six children and a noted author and teacher. She is supervisor of missionary work of the Women's Missionary Society and Young Peoples Dept. of her church in the West.

Mrs. Bryant has served as a missionary in Africa, a psychiatric social worker for the Maryland State Hospital and Welfare Department for ten years. She served for three years as vice president of Church Women United, state of Maryland, and two years as manager for Field Enterprise Educational Corporation.

March 7 has been established as the official date for this international celebration, since Lent comes at different times for Orthodox communions.

The offering from World Day of Prayer will be given to the mission, served by Mrs. Bryant, for food and clothing.

Exact-Change Fare System For KC Buses

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Area Transportation Authority is going to an exact-change fare on its buses next fall in the hope that it will cut down on holdups.

The system is due to go into effect Oct. 1.

The authority also voted to accept bids on 30 new buses.

Space Chatter Difficult To Understand

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — So you think you have a hard time understanding the jargon the Apollo astronauts and the Manned Spacecraft Center toss back and forth.

Consider the Apollo 9 crewmen as they prepared to go to bed at the end of their first day.

Mission Control: And one other item over Tananarive (tracking station) if you can. We'd like to have a prd readout from each of you. And we'll see you over Tananarive at about 24:25.

Spacecraft: Uh . . . Roger and thank you. We'll get a prd report as soon as we figure out what it is.

Mission Control: And that's a dosimeter reading over Tananarive.

A dosimeter is an instrument for measuring doses of X-rays or doses of radioactivity.

Spacecraft: Rog.

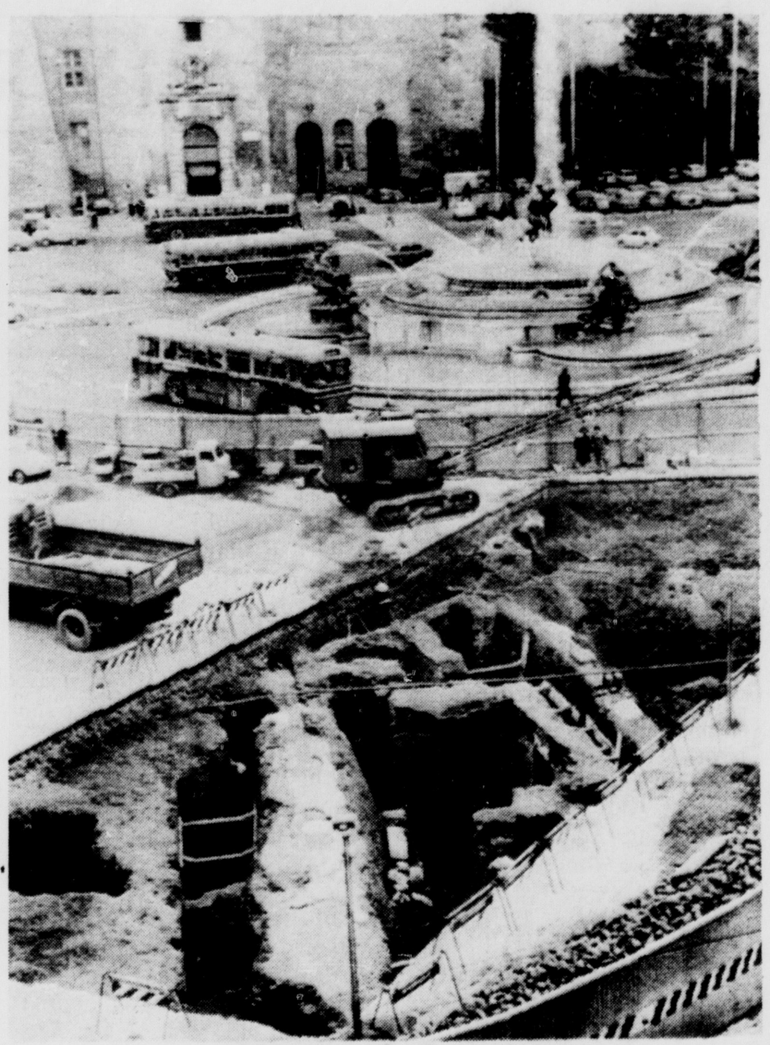
Rookie capsule communicator Ron Evans, himself an astronaut, was a victim of a slip of the tongue.

Mission Control: Apollo 7, Houston. About one minute to los. It looks like the last time we'll be talking to you this evening.

Spacecraft: Rog. It's Apollo 9.

Mission Control: (chuckle) Sorry about that.

Spacecraft: It's all right. New guys are that way.



Unearth Ruins

Proving that Rome is indeed the Eternal City, workmen unearth the walls of ancient Roman homes near the Renaissance fountain the Piazza Esedra while excavating for a new subway line. Arthaeologists are now trying to determine if the ruins are important enough to be allowed to remain.

Knife and Fork Club Will Hear Talk on Castro

Jose Norman, who was born in England and who gave up a professional career in music to go to Cuba with his wife and young family to start a coffee farm in the jungles of the Sierra Maes mountains, will be the guest speaker at the Sedalia Knife and Fork club at its guest night meeting Saturday night at the Bothwell Hotel.

Norman, whose family had moved to the United States from England and became American citizens, went to Cuba in 1949. His wife, a granddaughter of the famous Garcia of "Message to Garcia" fame, had become owner of a sizeable acreage in Cuba. The farm was looted and the buildings burned by Castro rebels. The Norman family was imprisoned, but eventually fled Cuba.

Presently Norman is working diligently with anti-Castro forces in the United States. He is considered one of the best informed Americans on Castro's efforts to seize Latin American countries through anarchy. Hence the title of his address, "Communist Inspired Anarchy in Latin America." The Castro hide-out headquarters were only 15 miles from the Norman home.

SALE on Fiberglass Belted Tires
First price break saves you $28 to $42 on set of four tires!
Plus . . . You get up to 50% more mileage • So Silvertown Belted HT costs less to use than even our new-car tires • And you even save on gasoline!
WHY? . . . This bold new design!
It's a revolutionary new concept in tire construction: A polyester cord body gives a smooth, quiet, no-thump ride. And a rigid fiberglass belt keeps tread flat against the road. So tread rubber won't scuff off. You get longer mileage. Better gas mileage from less tire drag. And greater resistance to blowouts and bruises, too.

Sirhan

was almost as if he relished his turn to be heard after sitting through eight weeks of trial.

Cooper asked about the shooting of Irwin Stroll, one of the wounded.

Q. Did you bear him any ill will?

A. No, sir, I did not.

And so the questions wen about Elizabeth Evans, Ira Goldstein and William Weisel.

Each time, Sirhan said no, he didn't bear the shooting victim any ill will.

The question was not asked about Kennedy.

After court, Cooper was asked: will that one be put directly?

"No," he said. "But the answer will come out."

The defense claims the scenes of war witnessed by Sirhan as a dispossessed Arab child in the Arab-Zionist struggle over Palestine in the late 40s and early 50s crippled his mind to the point where he could not meaningfully plot Kennedy's murder.

"The Jews kicked us out of our homes," Sirhan said. "The Zionists kicked us out. We were terrorized out of leaving our homes."

Sirhan's mother, Mary and his 30-year-old brother, Adel, testified that Sirhan grew up amid poverty, starvation and repeated bombings.

"I recollect, sir, quite vividly the incident which my mother referred to about the soldier—the dismembered soldier with his body exploded," said Sirhan. "I remember seeing that leg, sir, with the soldier's boot in it."

Q. Do you have any recollection of the death of your brother, Munir, that is your first brother Munir?

A. Yes, sir. I have a slight recollection of that. I used to walk around his casket."

Mrs. Sirhan said the defendant was three when Munir, then 7, was killed by a truck while running from a scene of shooting. Sirhan was so upset, she said, that she also named her next son Munir.

Blackwell In Blast At Editor

DEXTER, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Earl Blackwell, D - Hillsboro, president pro tem of the Missouri Senate, has accused a weekly newspaper editor of being a "sheep" with a "stupid mentality."

It was only a year ago that Blackwell used the term "hog wash" in reply to a letter urging he support a proposed juvenile mental treatment center.

The senator's latest blast was aimed at John E. Miller, editor of The Dexter Messenger and Statesman. Miller had written Blackwell calling his attention to an editorial in The Daily Dunklin Democrat of Kennett which objected to the senator's proposal to raise public utility taxes.

"Please do not forward any further misleading and factually erroneous editorials from The Daily Dunklin Democrat of Kennett," said Blackwell's letter.

"If you, or others with your stupid mentality, would attempt to discover the facts, then you would not have to go along like sheep with Mr. Stapleton's ignorant prejudiced editorials. I suppose, however, that you and others like you are incapable of independent thought."

Stapleton is publisher of the Kennett newspaper.

also boosted the orbit. But neither test shook up the nose-to-nose spacecraft as much as had been expected. It was a successful prove-out of one major unknown for the two ships that may carry Americans to the moon in July.

The two firings reduced the fuel load of the spaceship by almost 26,000 pounds, making it easier to control the ship with small jets should deft maneuvering be necessary for any rescue attempt in a space chase scheduled for Friday.

Mission Control awakened the space voyagers—Air Force Cols. James A. McDivitt and David R. Scott, and civilian Russell L. Schweickart—shortly after 5:30 a.m. EST.

Like many an earthling, one of the crewmen displayed just a bit of reluctance to forego an extra forty winks.

Acknowledging a radioed call from ground communicator Ron Evans, himself an astronaut, a drowsy-sounding voice from Apollo 9 murmured, "I guess we have to wake up now, huh?"

"Yeah, it's about that time," responded Evans.

All the ensuing conversation from space sounded brisk and alert, however, as the astronauts proceeded to jot down an updated flight plan and other technical data preliminary to powering up for the day's labors.

After that the next order of business was breakfast. The menu consisted of Canadian bacon, apple sauce, corn flakes, brownies and fruit drinks.

The Apollo 9 voyagers were flying nose-to-nose with their buglike lunar module—a combination dubbed "gumdrop and spider" by Mission Control—at the end of a first day which often found them too busy to talk.

"We were pretty well crowded today to get all these things in," one of them said just before turning in for their first nine-hour sleep period. "And we sort of missed lunch."

"Roger," Mission Control replied. "I could tell you were really humping up there."

Tired though they were after 12 busy hours, they were happy because of their success with a demanding flight plan. Asked whether they were ready to copy some information from the ground, one of them replied jokingly, "Stand by. We're going to have to sort through the food bags for a piece of paper."

The biggest tests come on days three, four and five. Scheduled for those days are complete testing of the spider-like moon cab, a two-hour space walk by Schweickart, and a chase with two astronauts in the moon cab, a craft so fragile a man could put his foot through the side.

City Fires

Firemen made a run at 3:24 p.m. Monday to the 600 block of West Sixth. There was no fire. Firemen were called to wash down gasoline which had leaked out of a car.

At 9:30 a.m. Tuesday the Sedalia Fire Department answered a false alarm to the 400 block on West Pettis.

At 9:48 p.m. Monday Sedalia firemen answered a call to the Dutch Maid laundry near Bing's east market. A motor had shorted out and the fire was out when the firemen arrived.

Area Fires

The Pettis County Fire Department answered a call to the Norman Schlobohm home, Route 2, LaMonte, at 12:05 a.m. Tuesday, but by the time they arrived the 6-room, 2-story house was blazing out of control.

The house and contents were a total loss. There were no injuries, the family having been alerted by their dog. The fire is believed to have been caused by a faulty flue.

Police Report

John M. Kemper, 712 West Fifth, reported to police vandals broke the antenna on his car while it was parked at the above address Sunday night.

Ronald Pummill, 316 West Broadway, reported Tuesday morning that a .22-cal pistol, a pool cue and a battery charger, total value $70, had been stolen from his vehicle parked in the 700 block on South Moniteau.

Mrs. James Montgomery, 408 West Pettis, reported Tuesday morning that someone had broken into the home of her neighbor, Leslie Reed, 412 West Pettis. Officers investigated and found a pistol and some other items were missing. The burglar apparently entered through a bathroom window, the report indicates.

approval in the Missouri house.

County assessors would, if the bill passes, get a salary ranging from $4,500 to $17,500 depending on assessment valuations in their counties.

Debate strung out on a proposal to allow police in St. Louis and Jackson counties to arrest persons on suspicion of misdemeanor and was laid over. The bill drew opposition from legislators who claimed it would give police unequalled harassment privileges.

Rep. Ken Rothman, D-Clayton, sponsor, defended the bill saying now St. Louis County police make arrests for felonies when they "know full well" a felony has not been committed. He said they make this type arrest because they cannot arrest suspected violators of misdemeanors.

Rep. James E. Spain, D-Bloomfield, asked why police officers who "are already abusing the law" should be given more authority.

The bill would allow police officers to hold a man up to five hours on suspicion of a misdemeanor.

Other bills given preliminary approval by the House Monday would:

Increase the state purchasing agent's pay by $5,000.

Allow county courts to appoint as many election judges as necessary.

Make all local elections in St. Louis County fall on the first Tuesday in April.

The House also received a dozen new bills including proposals to:

Raise the tax on liquor by 20 cents a gallon and add 5 cents a gallon to the tax on wine. Rep. Hardin C. Cox, D-Rock Port, sponsor, said it would yield about $1.6 million to be tagged for public schools.

Create a Board of Commissioners to establish police training curricula.

Abolish the use of trading stamps as premiums.

Provide motor vehicle license plates for legislators with an "R" or "S" for House and Senate members, respectively.

Require cats to be immunized for rabies.

Require garages to make reports of sale, rent, storage or repair of any motor vehicle to the Director of Revenue.

Lavole Speaks To Sorority

Jean-Louis Lavole, American Field Service student from Rennes, France, was the speaker at the regular meeting of Alpha Delta Kappa at Flat Creek Inn, Feb. 25.

Jean-Louis is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gray, 1022 West Seventh. He is very impressed with the American Schools. In France mathematics, languages and sciences are stressed, he said, while in America the young people are allowed more selction and receive a more liberal education.

According to Jean-Louis, American teachers take a more personal interest in their students. French teachers enter and leave the classrooms by separate doors and students have no opportunity to ask questions.

American food is quite different and Jean-Louis has learned to eat corn which is called maize in France and is only used to feed animals. He especially enjoys barbequed chicken. When he first arrived he thought his family ate picnic style each evening which is really our family style of serving. In France the mother sits at one end of the table and serves each member beginning with the oldest man.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Barbara Freund, president. Eleven members answered roll call. Miss Freund reminded members of the district meeting to be held March 29 at International Headquarters in Kansas City.

Mrs. Gary Johnson and Mrs. D.I. Mayfield were installed as chapter pledges prior to the meeting.

Mrs. Tom Gray and Elizabeth Ann Bronson were guests.

Mayor

m.p.h. from Sunset to one-fourth mile east of the west city limits and 50 m.p.h. from there to the city limits, in accordance with the State Highway Department's recommendation, was approved.

Final passage was given to an ordinance creating stop signs on all intersecting streets on Kentucky from Main to the south city limits except 16th. A maximum fine of $100 for failing to adhere to stop signs was included in the ordinance.

The franchise tax payment of $8,495.02 from Cablevision, Inc., was received by the council.

The problem of the rough grade crossing at the intersection of the Katy tracks and Ohio and 16th Streets was brought before the council by Councilman Simons. Mayor Walker commented that he had been informed by a spokesman for the railroad that the crossing will be repaired as soon as weather permits. It was reported that the repairs were scheduled for last year but that the asphalt plant had shut down before the repairs could be made.

Bernard Herndon, 705 West Cooper, and Dr. Robert W. Edmonds, 2413 South Stewart, were appointed to the Sedalia Human Rights Commission.

The following liquor license applications were approved by the council:

Renewal application for liquor by the drink for the Old Missouri Homestead by Ivan C. Wright; renewal application by Leo G. Dick for package liquor license for Dick's Tally Ho Drive Inn; renewal application for package beer and liquor for the Kroger Family Center, 701 East Broadway by the Kroger Co.; renewal application for a 5 per cent beer license for Crouch's Tavern by Mary Crouch, and a new application for a 5 per cent beer license by Alberta Blake for the Corner Drive Inn, 16th and Grand.

The resignation of David Curry from the Sedalia Housing Authority, effective Feb. 17, was presented to the council and accepted.

Officers' reports for the month of February were as follows: city collector, $26,852.60; street cuts, $45; plumbers' permits, $21.50; building permits, $253; electrical permits, $29.75; library fines, $138.42; police fines, 3,060.18; total, $30,400.45.

The following department bills through Feb. 28, were approved for payment: general and administrative, $2,275.07; airport, $82.42; fire, $163; police, $1,826.87; street and alley, $2,658.79; sanitation, $712.38; sewer, $1,864.03; public buildings and grounds, $462.76; industrial development, $682.70; lights and water, $38.98; parking, $128.12, sewer system account, $3,589.86; total, $14,484.98.

'No' Vote By Ryan

Sen. John Ryan of Sedalia voted against the proposed utilities tax hike that was defeated in the Missouri Senate Tuesday.

Royals Representative Speaks To Rotarians

"We'll field a young, enthusiastic and exciting baseball team", Rick Current, director of customer services for the Kansas City Royals major league baseball team, told Sedalia Rotarians Monday noon at Hotel Bothwell.

"We may lose a lot of games because of youthful enthusiasm," Current stated, "but we're investing in young comers who will build us into a great team in a few years."

Current, who joined the Royals after three years with the St. Louis Cardinals, spoke briefly on the background of the new Royals owner, E.M. Kauffman, who in 16 years has developed Marian Laboratories from a basement pill-making operation to a pharmaceutical firm valued at $144 million. Kauffman, Current stated, has a personal net worth of from $65 to $80 million and has 23 employees who are worth more than a million dollars which they have acquired through their connection with the Marian Laboratories organization.

The Royals organization is topnotch and expense has not been spared to get the right people for each position of management. Cedric Tallis, the vice president, came from the Los Angeles Angels where he demonstrated ability to put together a winning ball club, and Joe Gordon, the team manager, led the Kansas City Athletics to one of its best winning performances a couple of years ago only to be fired by the Athletics' owner, Charles Finley.

Thirty ball players have been purchased for $175,000 each for an investment of $5,250,000, Current said. The Royals organization decided to go after young, hungry ball players who will develop into winners rather than start with older, proven players they might pick up as an expansion ball club. The Royals management believes this will pay off for them and give the fans a look at real hustlers who will present an excitingly good performance whether winning or losing during the first season.

The speaker was introduced by Charles "Bud" Hurtt, program chairman.

The club president, Dr. Stanley Fisher, announced that Harry Finks, Clinton, Mo., Rotarian and a former Rotary district governor was successful in his bid for membership on the board of directors of Rotary International. He announced that club attendance for February was nearly 85 per cent which placed the Sedalia club 13th out of 30 clubs in the district.

Alvin "Cy" Cline, chairman in charge of handling arrangements for a Rotary-sponsored exchange study group of Augstralians to this country, announced six men will be visiting in Sedalia and living in homes of Rotarians from April 14 to 17. Six men from the Sedalia area will visit in Australia later this year under the program.

Coming here from Australia are, Rex B. Butler, attorney; Graham R. Wallis, geologist; John McK Grant, education research; Gerard A. McInernay, pharmacist; Ronald E. Kidd, architect; and Thomas R. Dock, engineer. Harry Walch and J.O. Latimer volunteered to pick up the men in Warrensburg on the morning of April 14 and other Rotarians have agreed to house the men while they are in Sedalia touring industrial and business firms.

Birthday recognition in song was given to Dr. L.S. Geiger, Kirk McCrary, Dr. Roy Keller and Dr. Joseph Rodewald who have March birthdates. Merrill Strombom gave the invocation and Don Barnes introduced the following guests: Dale Stammerjohn, Rotary member from Boonville; Dr. Lyman Riney, oral surgeon, Sedalia, guest of Dr. A.L. Miller; Charles Lawrence, new executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, guest of E.N. Healey; Dan Livingston, of the social security administration Sedalia office with Cy Cline, and student guests John Rissler and Terry Siron, of Smith-Cotton High School.

Group singing was led by James Denny with Mrs. Keith Maynard as accompanist.

Tanks

the allied defenders pulled out of the camp.

The North Vietnamese bombarded the Ben Het camp and an outpost to the west with rockets, mortars and their tanks' 76mm guns. They killed two Americans and a South Vietnamese, set an ammunition dump afire and destroyed an allied tank.

U.S. artillerymen from the 4th Division stationedin the camp joined in the defense with their big guns, and North Vietnamese infantrymen were unable to get to the main camp, U.S. spokesmen said. But the enemy made a ground assault on the outpost to the West.

The camp's garrison included 12 American Green Beret advisers and about 400 South Vietnamese. They had been under fire for the past week.

Enemy casualties were not known. A spokesman said no bodies were found in the hulks of several tanks located about 300 yards from the camp.

Lt. Col. Andrew J. Marquis, of Jacksonville, Fla., commander of Special Forces in the area, said that the road leading to the camp had been heavily mined by the garrison and some of the tanks appeared to have been blown up by the road mines.

Boys Club Leaders Attend A Seminar

John Brown, Jr. and Palmer Nichols, leaders at the Sedalia Boys Club, attended a one-day seminar Friday, Feb. 28, at the new Boys Club of Kansas City.

The conference was devoted to program, personnel, leadership and related issues. Lunch was served at noon by members of the KC Boys Club, and also the banquet in the evening.

The Sedalia Boys Club belongs to the Show-Me area council, Boys Clubs of America, which is composed of Boys Clubs throughout Missouri and Kansas. The next council meeting is scheduled to be held in St. Louis during October.

Selken Is Judge At Ozark Empire

The Ozark Empire Fair Association of Springfield has announced the selection of Paul Selken of Smithton as one of the official judges of the 1969 Fair.

Selken is scheduled for two days of judging in the Dairy Cattle Division of the Show.

The fair, to be held Aug. 7 to 13, attracts over 1,000 herd of America's finest dairy cattle each year.

Enemy Ignores U.S. Plea About Prisoners of War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration apparently is making little headway in winning freedom or even improved conditions for hundreds of Americans held prisoner in North Vietnam.

A new memorandum signed by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird says North Vietnam "continues to disregard the humanitarian protections" guaranteed by the 1949 Geneva Convention.

"Our men are being denied basic rights, including the right of their families to know that they are captured, the right to correspond freely with their families and the right of impartial inspection of prisoner of war compounds," Laird said.

All three things have been major goals of the Pentagon's Prisoner of War Policy Committee which was organized some months ago to handle POW problems.

Laird's comments are included in a document directed to the committee and dated last Friday. It calls for a "new review of policies and practices" applying to families of imprisoned servicemen."

"I want to be assured that the military services and the office of the secretary of defense are doing all that we possibly can for the next of kin," Laird said.

The memo was interpreted to mean the Pentagon expects it will be sometime before U.S. prisoners will be returning home and that new efforts should be made to insure everything is done to ease problems facing their families.

He called for recommendations, within 30 days, of "any courses of action which will better serve the interests of our captured and missing servicemen and their families."

By latest U.S. count, Hanoi holds 333 U.S. servicemen, most of them Air Force personnel whose planes were shot down over the north during nearly four years of bombing.

The actual number held may be triple that, defense officials say. Hanoi has never said how many Americans it has. Pentagon records list 942 men missing, and most of these are presumed to be alive in North Vietnam.

Hanoi's refusal to release names of Americans held is a violation of the Geneva Convention to which North Vietnam is a signatory, defense officials say.

The United States also maintains that Hanoi has violated the rules of war by refusing to permit servicemen to send and receive mail and by refusing to permit impartial intermediaries such as the International Committee of the Red Cross to visit POW camps and see how the men are being treated.

The United States achieved one small breakthrough last year when Hanoi informed U.S. representatives at the Paris talks that Christmas gifts sent from the United States were distributed to American prisoners.

Tentative Agreement Is Reached

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Union and transit system representatives reached a tentative agreement Monday night that could halt a strike that has affected 100,000 bus riders in the St. Louis area.

A vote on the proposed contract by the 1,800 striking members of the Amalgamated Transit Workers Union, Local 788, is set for Wednesday. The union negotiating commitee reportedly will recommend unanimously that the pact be accepted.

John Baine, president of the Transit Services Corp., said after the meeting with federal negotiators the proposal worked out by the union and the Bi-State Transit System offered a number of improvements and was in line with settlements in major cities.

Neither Baine nor Harold Driemeyer, local president, would divulge the details of the agreement. The union previously had said it wanted an increase of 60 to 70 cents an hour over two years and improved working conditions. The transit cmpany said it offered 45 cents an hour over the two years. The old wage scales were not available.

The bus drivers and mechanics struck Saturday when their contract expired, but the full effect of the strike wasn't felt until Monday when people trying to get to and from work snarled the city's streets and traffic backed up for miles.

Life Made Worthwhile By the Little Things

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

Breaking a path in new-fallen snow and looking back and seeing that nothing is following you but your own footprints...The placid resignation of an old woman's hands, folded in her lap at a symphony concert...the sound of valley bells heard on a high hill at twilight.

Walking across the Brooklyn Bridge on a misty day when the towers of Manhattan loom like the spires of Camelot...A dog wigwagging his tail to show his eager willingness to share a crumb of your gladness or sadness...A little girl holding a yellow dandelion under her small boyfriend's chin to see if he likes butter.

Watching a bunch of bums eating Christmas turkey at a Bowery mission. . . Having someone run to meet you with open arms...The bend in a river, a distant sail setting out to sea...The hearty taste of homemade beef stew on a wintry day.

The swirling white clouds of an old-fashioned steam locomotive, huffing and chugging like a metal dragon impatient to be gone... Telling a child to wish upon a falling star, and wondering what that silent wish might be...Looking for four-leaf clovers on a fine summer afternoon, and being the first to find one.

Opening a telegram from a loved one, knowing for sure the news it brings will be good-...Throwing a winning ringer in a game of horseshoes against a better player...Standing by as a mare gives birth to her first shaky-legged colt...Two old men playing checkers on a bench outside the county courthouse, each trying to talk the other into making a mistake...Teaching a youngster how to tie his shoes.

The smell of a fresh-baked pie being taken from a hot oven-...Hearing the welcome sound of footsteps outside, waiting for the door to open...The comforting feel of putting on a worn sport coat your wife has been trying for years to get you to throw away... making friends with some park squarrels at the going price—peanuts.

Getting a letter from your son at college asking for advice instead of money...Attending a high school graduation and becoming suddenly aware that your daughter is by far the prettiest girl in the class.

Finding, when no plumber can be reached, that after all you have the know-how to fix a leaky faucet yourself...The tangy taste of strawberries picked from your own garden...The redolence of anything made of leather...The gleam of antique silver or time-worn brass...Lighting up dinner table candles for someone cooking in the kitchen whom you hold dear.

Standing around a piano, arm in arm, singing old sweet songs that even Lawrence Welk has forgotten...Pausing in a woodland stroll to watch a robin feed her young...Paying off a mortgage you felt might hang over your head forever.

Sitting in a rocking chair on your front porch with your shoes off, at peace with God and man, and knowing that there is nothing else on earth for the moment that you have to do except rock back and forth and enjoy yourself. That is living.

Shortage of Manpower Might Hinder Programs

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — After more than 30 years of persistent national efforts to reduce unemployment, this nation now may have to deal with the opposite face of the problem for years to come. It's a seller's market for workers.

The present low rate of unemployment, about 3.3 per cent of the work force, proves that great advances have been made in finding jobs, even though many individuals and groups and geographical areas still suffer inequities.

But after so many years of dealing with a problem of too many workers and too few jobs, a tendency has developed among Americans to overlook the problems of a labor shortage. This shortage could be disruptive.

A study just released by the National Planning Association suggests that during the next decade a manpower shortage may actually prevent the nation from achieving widely accepted goals in housing, health and social welfare.

It offers these examples:

—During the 1970s some 18,000 doctors will be needed each year, but American medical schools are expected to graduate only 8,500. Some 5,000 new dentists a year will be needed; only 3,200 a year were graduated from dental schools in the 1960s.

—Social welfare goals call for an average annual growth of nearly 20,000 social workers, but increases in recent years have been at a rate of only 5,000 a year.

—Urban development and housing goals would necessitate a yearly increase of 7,000 carpenters. But in the period 1957-1965 the number of carpenters declined by 50,000.

The association, a nonprofit, nonpolitical group that made the study for the U.S. Labor Department, summarized the problem by estimating that about 101 million workers will be needed by 1975, or 10 million more than projected.

From the report it is possible to draw some likely consequences:

—Federal administrations will need more than ever to establish priorities.

—The labor and brains of nonwhites may be utilized to a much greater extent that at present. Unemployment will be more a problem of individuals rather than masses.

—Married women may find it more profitable to return to work. The elderly, or those who retired at 65, might find themselves called upon as consultants.

—More manpower training programs may be needed and changes in education curriculums will be required to provide the job market with the new skills required.

—Rigid work requirements—as to minimum age and educational achievement, for example—may have to be waived.

Regarding the last point, sociologists Peter Drucker made these observations in a recent article in the mazazine Daedalus:

"There is no reason in the work itself why a 14-year-old girl was old enough to sell behind a counter in 1914 and why today the salesgirl has to have a high school degree (and preferably a year or two of college)."

There is nothing to being a typist or a file clerk, he continued, that requires a high school or college education or even a high degree of maturity. Instead, the clerk could enter the work force years earlier.

An automobile assembly plant foreman's job, said Drucker, hasn't changed in 40 years, but the educational requirements have been raised from completion of high school to a minimum of two years of college.

Ex-Nun, Educator To Marry

Jacqueline Grennan

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jacqueline Grennan, the former Catholic nun and educator who left her religious order two years ago, announced she intends to marry and will resign as president of Webster College.

At the time Miss Grennan disclosed that she had been fully dispensed from her vows by the Roman Catholic church, the former Sister of Loretto also announced the school, with an enrollment of about 1,200, had been transferred from the the religious order and would become a secular school.

Miss Grennan, president of the college since 1965, said Monday she plans to marry Paul J. Wexler, 49, a New York businessman. The Tenalfy, N.J., resident is a widower and has two children. No date or site for the marriage was set.

Miss Grennan, 42, has become nationally known as president of Webster and is highly regarded as an innovator in education. One student at the college said her most important contribution was "her vitality and aggressiveness" in working toward a strong student voice in the school's operations.

In a joint statement with Sanford J. Timmerman, chairman of the school's board of directors, Miss Grennan said her plans to marry made it necessary for her to leave her post. Zimmerman said she had agreed to remain while the school searched for a replacement.

Dismiss Charge

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Charges against the University of Missouri chapter of Students for a Democratic Society have been officially dismissed.

A student-faculty committee Monday affirmed the action taken a week earlier by the university's Committee of Student Organizations, Government and Activities.

Dropped were charges of distributing allegedly obscene literature on campus and illegally changing the organization's name to the Richard Ichord Chapter of SDS. Rep. Richard Ichord, D—Mo., is chairman of the U.S. House Internal Security Committee.

The committee said SDS stopped distributing the literature when asked to do so.

outstanding in every way...

"Just beautiful . . ." It's what so many families say about a Heckart-Gillespie service. What makes a service "just beautiful"? First, it is comfortable, home-like facilities that provide an attractive setting for greeting friends. It is the privacy of a livingroom-type family room. And the quiet dignity of a distinctive family-type chapel. But it is also deep personal concern for the satisfaction of each family we serve. A personal desire to make every service, regardless of size or circumstance, a lasting, gratifying expression. These are reasons why so many families prefer Heckart-Gillespie. It means you can recommend Heckart-Gillespie with confidence.

Tax Break for Little Guy

Laments of taxpayers against inequities of our tax systems seem to sound like voices of the wandering winds wafting in alternate directions and bending nothing but tree twigs.

We read about public servants in the Congress and elsewhere being conscious of the need of tax reforms but their correctional activities remind a person of illustrations of animation in slow motion.

Nothing but an organized effort by taxpayers will get results. Little effort in this direction is evident. In the meantime the educational process of arousing people to consciousness about tax inequities continues hopefully.

Of general interest is a letter written to Hon. Wilbur Mills, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, by Ray De Crane, NEA tax specialist. It carries its own weight:

"Your committee of the House of Representatives has been holding hearings on the question of income tax reform. So far your sessions have all been devoted to the tax-exempt status of various charitable foundations and trusts.

"Hopefully, before your committee hearings end, the questions of changes in the tax laws for the benefit of average citizens will be considered. These are the people who have no income from tax-sheltered sources, who can't take advantage of the 27½ per cent depletion allowances on oil investments and who don't have the funds to invest in tax-free municipal bonds.

"They do faithfully and honestly pay their taxes, however. Even though the amount of tax they pay these days is more than they can hope to save in an average year.

"Based upon experience acquired in more than 30 years in writing on taxes and listening to the problems of the small taxpayer, I would like to propose these for your consideration:

Credit for Dependents

"The $600 allowance for dependents has not been changed in 20 years. Can you feed, clothe, house, provide medical and dental care, and educate a growing child for $600 today? Take it from a father who has seven children at home: at today's prices you can't even feed them a year for $600.

"The allowance is a fiction that should be adjusted upward or eliminated entirely. Give parents some tax relief in another form, if need be, but don't insult them by trying to tell them that $600 is a suitable allowance for each child.

Poverty Level Taxpayers

"We are told by one branch of our government that $3,000 represents a poverty level income for an American family. If this is true how can you justify adding to the burdens of this family by taxing them? At this year's tax rates a family of three — husband, wife and one child — pays $104 income tax on that $3,000 "poverty" income.

Dividend Exclusion

"A husband and wife together may obtain up to $200 in tax-free dividends every year. The fact of ownership of securities indicates they have extra funds for investment purposes. But the family which does not have enough to invest and puts all its resources in a savings account must pay a tax on every cent of interest earned. Does this seem fair?

Sick Pay Benefits

"One of the most glaring inconsistencies is in the handling of sick pay. A salaried employe who is absent from work because of illness receives full pay. Yet, under certain circumstances, this same employe can deduct up to $100 a week for a period of this enforced absence from work.

"On the other hand, the hourly rated employe whose pay stops when he is out sick receives no such benefit. He has the expenses of medical care, he doesn't have the income to offset it, yet he is denied the deduction the other man got who received full pay.

"A sense of fair play would indicate things are being done in reverse.

"This may be presumptuous, Mr. Mills, but I thought I would pass on to you some of the things that are on taxpayers' minds these days as we struggle with Form 1040."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Agnew Puts Energy Into New Job

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew, the butt of Democratic jokes during the presidential campaign, is determined to have the last laugh on those who snickered at his qualifications.

He has quietly buckled down to an 18-hour day of feverish work and study. He refuses to see reporters except at routine press conferences, avoids old friends whose business dealings might cause criticism and concentrates on mastering his new job.

He has the sympathetic support of President Nixon, who hasn't forgotten what it's like to be kicked around as Vice President. Nixon came out of the 1952 campaign so scarred that the faculty of Duke University, where he studied law, refused to grant an honorary degree that the trustees had voted for him.

When he was invited to speak at Whittier College, his other alma mater, the embarrassed school administrators had to form a second reception line for those not wanting to shake the Vice President's hand. An attempt to name a new street in his home town Nixon Boulevard stirred up such an uproar that the city fathers decided to call it Mar Vista Lane instead.

But the greatest hurt, Nixon has confided to intimates, was President Eisenhower's hesitation about keeping him on the ticket in 1956. These experiences, the intimates say, have created a special bond between Nixon and Agnew.

The President has taken pains not only to make Agnew a full participant in almost all White House activities but to see that he is treated with proper respect. Agnew, for example, presides over the Cabinet and National Security Council when the President is absent.

—"When I Was VP"—

And Nixon instructed his Cabinet officers firmly: "When I was Vice President and substituted for the President, the Cabinet officers sometimes would send subordinates to attend the meetings. I don't want you to send deputies just because the Vice President is presiding."

The President has put Agnew in charge of intergovernment relations with the responsibility to act as liaison between the federal government and the governors, mayors and other local officials. In addition, Agnew is vice chairman of the Urban Affairs Council, which is attempting to solve the crisis in the cities. By statute, the Vice President also directs the space program.

Agnew, for his part, is completely loyal to the President. He is careful to neither say nor do anything that would indicate the slightest difference with the President. This has not always been true. Vice Presidents and Presidents in the past frequently have been at odds.

Note: Agnew wanted Walter Washington, the Capital's Negro mayor, as his special assistant, and even persuaded Washington to take the job. But the President decided it was more important for Washington to continue as mayor.

—Hickel's Dubious Advisers—

Secretary of the Interior Wally Hickel has done a forthright job of cracking down on the oil companies off the California coast, but seems to have a blind spot when it comes to picking personnel.

He doesn't realize that when he puts an oilman or a private power lobbyist in charge of his bureaus the public will get oil policies and private utilities decisions. Yet the new Secretary of the Interior constantly veers to industry in appointing top bureaucrats.

Most recent case is his selection of Gene P. Morrell, vice mayor of Ardmore, Okla., to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior in charge of mineral resources, where he would pass on import quotas and such ticklish questions as how much oil should be imported from Venezuela and whether New England should have a special trade zone at Machiasport, Me.

These are decisions which require complete impartiality. Yet Morrell has occupied an office with his father in Ardmore, who represents Sinclair Oil, Kerr-McGee, Pan-American Oil. It's doubtful he would be impartial.

In contrast, Secretary Hickel snubbed highly qualified State geologist from Oregon, Hollis Dole, recommended by a highly qualified Republican, Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon. Dole, working with Hatfield when Governor of Oregon, prepared such careful regulations for offshore drilling that the catastrophe of Santa Barbara never could have happened off Oregon.

RALEIGH (N.C.) NEWS and OBSERVER: Four Letter Words. — In this day of increasing license in all the arts, mention is often made of "four letter words." The phrase is easily understood, but it certainly insults a lot of nice words in the language.

We could hardly get along without such "four letter words" as love, dear, wife, Lord, home, moon, star, baby, mama, papa, park, and, for more and more people now, boat. Certainly it should be pretty clear that the quality of a word cannot be measured by the number of its letters.

Black Studies: How Useful In Building of a Career?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Once student rebels have seized upon an issue like "black studies," it is difficult for anyone to cut through the fog of emotionalism they generate and look rationally at the matter.

To judge from the frenzy, the violence and the vandalism being visited upon such campuses as San Francisco State and the University of Wisconsin, black studies are the biggest thing in the nation today.

The demands, initially advanced by black students but usually taken up by some white rebels, generally begin with a call for courses in "black subjects" and go all the way to insistence on degrees in the field, separate departments (in one case, a separate college), all-black faculty chosen by black students without control or interference from the general faculty or university administrators.

Both black and white rebels making these demands normally couple them with a blanket charge that the school they are attacking as inadequate or lacking in black studies is governed by "white racism."

It seemed useful, therefore, to take a look at some strictly or largely Negro colleges—presumably free of the racist charge—to see what they have done and are doing in black studies.

Inquiries at Howard University in Washington, the five-school complex at the Atlanta University Center, and Tuskegee Institute in Alabama disclosed that only Howard now grants degrees in such studies. Tuskegee plans to start doing so next fall, but Atlanta still does not.

Howard has been awarding master's degrees in an African Studies Program since 1957. In 12 years, no more than 40 have been given, and at least half of these have gone to African students. But the number seeking such degrees has doubled in the last two years and in the current year alone there are 95 candidates.

What has happened to the American blacks who took African studies degrees at Howard? Officials indicate that most have gone into teaching African studies to others. Some wind up in government research or other work requiring African language or expertise.

At Atlanta, courses in African history, culture, language, peoples and economics have been given for periods of one or two years to a decade. Some relate African history to that of America or the Caribbean region. A few treat of the Negro and religion, or of his art and music.

The variety is probably greater at Howard, where 12 different African languages, including Swahili and Congolese, are taught. Tuskegee appears to offer a more limited range of choices.

Only a few courses sound as if they had direct application to American Negro life. One at Atlanta deals with black family life, another is called "Racism and the Law."

Most southern Negro students, say the officials at Atlanta and Tuskegee, take courses in African history or culture in the context of more general studies of America and the world. Their interest seems to be to relate their African heritage to America.

The disruptive students at Wisconsin and other northern schools appear rather to be insisting that black studies, heavily bent toward Africa, should be a major end in themselves—a means of preparing them for life in this country and of their helping others in the U.S. black community to "liberate themselves" from repressive white racism.

Yet the experience at Howard over 12 years suggests there is something painfully circular about the process the militant blacks and their white supporters are calling for. Students are demanding the chance to become experts in African studies so they can teach others to become similar specialists who in turn will do the same.

But even granting the educational expansion and the growth of government foreseen for the decades ahead, how wide is the utility of such study in a nation of mounting millions where millions of jobs calling for quite different kinds of expertise will beckon?

The bidding of today's hand is not given because we ourselves can't figure out what North was doing. South was Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt and he managed to become declarer at the satisfactory contract of six spades.

At 83, Mike still plays the dummy just about as well as anyone and in 1929 he was at the prime age for that ability. This hand was not an easy thing to make.

We don't know if he would have brought it home against a club lead, although he might well have done so. West opened the three of diamonds and Mike studied the hand for some time before playing to the first trick. After that, his play was very fast. He had worked everything out.

His first decision was to proceed on the assumption that trumps would break 3-2. His next was to try to establish the club suit. It would be just about impossible to bring the hearts home. Therefore, he won the diamond in dummy and discarded his singleton club. Then he ruffed a low club, entered dummy with the ace of spades, ruffed another low club, entered dummy again with the king of spades and started to run the rest of dummy's clubs.

East trumped as soon as he could but that was the only trick for the defense. The rest of dummy's clubs were good. The eight of trumps was an entry and the two little diamonds went on Mike's last trump and the ace of hearts.

Analysis in those days wasn't quite as good as it might be. The Bridge World magazine from which we obtained the record of this hand commented that there was no other way that the hand could be made. Actually, there was another line of play that would succeed but it would only do so because East, with three trumps, was also very short in hearts. We leave it to you to work this out, as well as the winning line against a club opening.

Don't Bomb, Nixon Told

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Paradoxically, influential officials known for their hawkish views are privately urging President Nixon not to bomb North Vietnam in retaliation for Ho Chi Minh's current offenseive.

There's no question that Ho's city attacks and his use of the Demilitarized Zone violate the terms President Johnson laid down when he ordered the bombing halt.

It could be argued with considerable justice that if the United States is to convince Hanoi and Saigon we won't sell out South Vietnam, we should not have taken a strong public stand that violations would mean the resumption of bombing — and then back down when Ho applies the pressure.

But the hawks urging Nixon to go slow (men with considerable experience in Communist guerrilla tactics) think retaliation is what Ho desires. These men believe Ho wants Nixon to bomb Hanoi.

They point out Ho's major problem today is to get moving again the antiwar agitation here that was applied to Johnson.

Of late, things have been relatively quiet on the stop-the-Vietnam war front. To get that agitation steamed up sufficiently to wring major U.S. concessions, Ho must:

* Swing U.S. battle deaths upward markedly.

* Convince many Americans the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese forces are gaining strength.

* "Prove" to the war-weary here that Nixon is not doing all he can to get peace at Paris.

These hawks believe the winter-spring "offensive," if it results in a Nixon decision to bomb the north, could achieve all three of these ends.

In particular, bombing of the North would be "convincing proof" to many that Communist forces in Vietnam are so strong that the administration believes the only way out is to begin again the air war over Ho's country.

This could well cause an uproar comparable to that Johnson faced.

These hawks believe, therefore, that we should treat the latest "offensive" as just another series of battles in which the VC-North Vietnamese were soundly trounced despite months of preparation and an arms build-up made easier by the bombing halt. (This assumes, of course, that the Communists will be beaten as thoroughly militarily in these battles as they were at Tet a year ago.)

Penicillin Effects Vary for Allergies

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — Can penicillin be taken for a long period?

A — Yes. It is sometimes given daily for five years after an attack of rheumatic fever but for most infections prolonged use is not necessary.

Q — What effect could a penicillin shot have on a person who was allergic to the drug?

A — The effects vary from a mild case of hives to severe shock. The reaction is less severe when the drug is given by mouth than when it is injected into the muscles.

Q — For what infections is V Cillin K prescribed?

A — This is a form of penicillin modified to make it effective when taken by mouth. The penicillins are of greatest value in combating pneumococcus pneumonia, scarlet fever, rheumatic fever, staphylococcus, infections, gonorrhea, syphilis, gas gangrene, anthrax and diphtheria.

Q — My son is taking tetra-cycline tablets. What are they for? What side effects may they have?

A — This antibiotic is given for typhus, Q fever, spotted fever, undulant fever, bacillary dysentery, tularemia and several other diseases. They may cause sore tongue, vomiting, diarrhea, skin rash, fever and uremia in persons who are sensitive to the drug.

Q — My son, 19, is worrying about a lump on his forehead. It was Xrayed and the doctor said it was nothing to worry about. What could be the cause?

A — Since the doctor saw fit to have the tumor Xrayed, I assume it was not a fatty tumor or a wen. There are several types of benign tumor of the skull and their cause is unknown.

Q — What is the cause and appearance of acne rosea? Can it be cured?

A — The cause of this disease, also called rosacea, is unknown but it is often aggravated by emotional upsets, exposure to heat or cold, alcohol, spices and drinks that contain caffeine. It is characterized by redness of the center of the face which may be associated with oily skin and pimples. Most victims outgrow it but, meanwhile, the best treatment is strict avoidance of aggravating factors and the application of an astringent lotion that contains sulfur. For severe cases, a skin specialist may use electrolysis to destroy the dilated blood vessels in the skin.

They're From Missouri

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The entire Missouri delegation was busy meeting fellow Missourians here recently. They were the guests of the University of Missouri Alumni Association at luncheon. Senator Stuart Symington, dean of the delegation, introduced his junior colleague Senator Thomas Eagleton as one of the most promising members of the Senate, which he termed a most distinguished club.

President James Horton of the Alumni Association welcomed the delegation, which included Congresswoman Lenore K. Sullivan of the 3rd District (whose husband was a former Sedalian). Her gentlemen associates from their districts were Representatives Bill Clay, 1st; James W. Symington, 2nd; William J. Randall, 4th; Richard Bolling, 5th; W.R. Hull, Jr., 6th; Durward G. Hall, 7th; Richard H. Ichord, 8th; William L. Hungate, 9th; and Bill D. Burlinson, 10th.

They all turned up again in the evening in the Senate caucus room to be greeted by Stephen J. Faherty, President of the Missouri State Society. It was a big day for the members of the Hawthorn State residing in the nation's capital.

Amendment to Withhold Arrest Records Passes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A bill up for consideration in the Senate got an amendment tagged on Monday to make arrest records so confidential they couldn't be disclosed to anyone.

Sen. Donald Manford, D-Kansas City, had introduced a bill to permit local governmental units to have their records microfilmed by the State Archives Section of the Secretary of State's office.

Sen. Lawrence J. Lee, D-St. Louis, offered the amendment. It was approved, 16-15.

Lee's amendment would make police arrest records confidential on the grounds it would protect people who are falsely arrested from having a record hanging over their heads.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, took exception to the amendment.

He said, "We have struck a tremendous blow at freedom of the press. We have completely eliminated the ability of the press to find out who has been arrested."

Spradling charged under the Lee amendment police could arrest a man, put him in a back room and nobody could find out he had been arrested.

"The abuses that could come out of this are perfectly fantastic," Spradling said.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, defended the amendment. He said "any newspaperman worthy of his hire is going to find out who is arrested."

Webster said he once ordered all young men between 18 and 20 arrested for questioning about an assault on an old woman. He said he is still writing letters trying to clear the records of some of those arrested.

Also objecting to the bill was Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-St. Louis County.

The Senate minority leader said the bill would build up a a great bureaucracy of record keeping.

Jones said present laws on preserving public records on film are ample.

The bill was laid over when Sen. Lem T. Jones, R-Kansas City, raised a point of order. He said it was not drafted according to Senate rules.

A similar bill in the House met with stiff opposition and was laid over when debate strung out.

Strip Mining Provision Would Have Few 'Teeth'

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A proposal on Reclamation of strip-mined land kept the House Mining Committee busy until almost midnight Monday night but no action was taken.

Rep. William F. Casey, D-Potosi, chairman, said an effort would be made to get the committee to approve a substitute to the bill drafted on the recommendation of a special intermim study committee.

The substitute would put regulation of strip mine reclamation under a state commission composed of the State Forester, State Geologist, Director of Mine Inspection, secretary of the Water Pollution Board and three members from the strip mining industry.

Casey said he realized the bill has been criticized as too watered down but he called it "a step in the right direction to get some legislation on the books to see how it works."

He noted that for many years more stringent bills have died in committee.

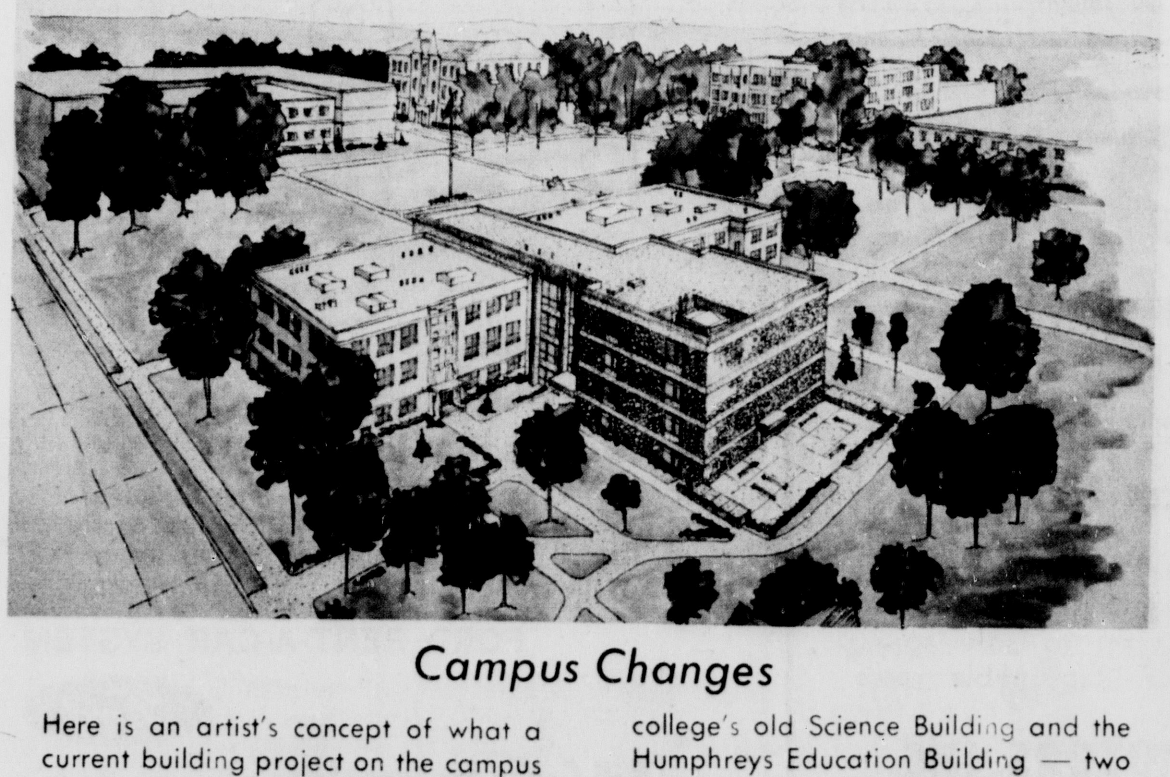
One feature of the bill would let landowners decide how strip mined areas should be used—whether for recreational lakes, pasture, tree growth or whatever. This drew generally favorable comment from the industry witnesses.

Casey said the bill "won't force anyone out of business or cause any undue hardship" and industry spokesmen generally agreed.

"I think the industry can live with this bill," Casey said.

Except for minor changes, spokesmen for the Peabody Coal Co., which mines 95 per cent of Missouri's coal, and the Missouri Limestone Producers Association said the bill was generally acceptable.

But two witnesses said it wasn't strong enough to do the job of reclaiming ruined land. They were former Rep. Ray Roberts, speaking for a group of landowners who own surface rights only, and the Rev. Russell Friedrichsen, a Catholic priest from Germantown, Mo.



Campus Changes

Here is an artist's concept of what a current building project on the campus of Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, will look like when it is completed this fall. The new south wing, which extends between and actually joins the two old buildings, is at right.

Eighty Rescued From Ice Floes

DETROIT (AP)—An estimated 80 persons were rescued from ice floes on Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie Monday.

Citizens at Fair Haven, North of Detroit, launched boats to bring in about 30 fishermen at Lake St. Clair, Coast Guard teams rescued about 50 more men from four floes on Lake Erie near Point Pelee National Park in Canada.

The Fair Haven group was stranded when ice "about the size of a city block" broke away from the shore.

Temperatures in the 40s, melted portions of the ice and the large chunks floated about a quarter of a mile out into each lake.

Ike Continues His Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is eating more and his doctors are talking less—two indications the 78-year-old five star general is continuing his remarkable recovery from abdominal surgery.

After reporting Monday that Eisenhower was overcoming the complications of pneumonia, doctors announced they would start issuing only one medical bulletin a day.

Bulletins at least twice daily have been the rule at the Army's Walter Reed General Hospital during the worst of Eisenhower's health crisis.

Pneumonia set in last Friday, but doctors said "the area of pneumonia continues to clear," and Eisenhower's diet was being increased gradually.

Eisenhower has passed the usual halfway mark in the critical two-week period following the Feb. 21 operation. Doctors said this critical period might extend longer for Eisenhower because of his age and seven heart attacks.

To Repeal Law

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Under Idaho law, a woman cannot be charged with a crime if it is shown that she acted at the command of her husband—except in cases which carry the death sentence.

The Idaho Senate voted Monday to repeal that law.

Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, said the law was enacted "when wives were regarded as chattel."

CHURCH BRAMPTON, England (AP) — Judy Carne, the sock-it-to-me girl on the Rowan and Martin "Laugh-In" show, is back home in her native village preparing for marriage.

Judy, 29, said she'll marry 24-year-old Dean Goodhill, a photographer who met her while she was on the receiving end of a custard pie.

"I was his assignment," said Judy. "He was so nice."

Judy said she expects him here for the wedding in a few days.

Thereafter, she said, it's from custard pie to cordon bleu cooking.

"A while ago," she said, "I couldn't boil an egg.

"Now I'm a real home body and I shall cook like crazy."

Use Oxygen Mask Through Wedding

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — The father of the bride wore an oxygen mask Sunday in the chapel of Rowan Memorial Hospital.

Elizabeth Karen Benson and William Ernest Gardner had planned their wedding in more orthodox surroundings until her father became ill. They were going to postpone the wedding but then Elizabeth had an idea. Why not the hospital chapel?

Her father needed the oxygen mask because of his illness but the wedding went off on schedule.

Red China and Soviets Continue War of Words

TOKYO (AP) — Peking whipped up more and bigger demonstrations today against the Soviet Union in the wake of their newest border clash and charged the Russians "dream of an armed occupation of Chinese territory."

Red China also accused the Soviet Union of "joining with the United States in attempting to encircle China."

Radio Peking reported that "tens of millions" of Chinese demonstrated through the night in all parts of the mainland. The broadcast said 450,000 Red Guards and workers massed around the Soviet Embassy in Peking, waving placards with demands to "hang" Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and "fry" Soviet Communist party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Chinese and Soviet troops clashed Sunday on an island in the frozen Ussuri River which separates Manchuria from the Soviet Union's maritime provinces. The island, named Chenpao by the Chinese and Damansky by the Soviets, is 200 miles north of Vladivostok and both countries claim it.

Moscow and Peking swapped protest notes Monday, each accusing the other of "provocative armed intrusion" that resulted in "many killed and wounded." Each side demanded compensation and punishment of those responsible, and warned "resolute counterblows" would be dealt future "violations."

Peking followed up with another warning today, an editorial in the official Peking People's Daily and in the Liberation Army Daily. Titled "Down with Tsars," it accused the Russians of "premeditated military provocation" and warned "anti-China intrigues on the part of the rebel Soviet revisionist group will come to no good end."

"The rebel Soviet revisionist group is resorting to tsarist colonialist-imperialism in attempting to suppress savagely and ruthlessly the people of Eastern Europe," the editorial said.

"They have turned the People's Republic of Mongolia into their own colony to materialize gradually their dream of an armed occupation of Chinese territory."

House Panel Opens Probe Into Seizure of Pueblo

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special House subcommittee is opening the first of what could be a series of congressional probes into the capture of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

Adm Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, was called as the leadoff witness at today's opening session as the committee sought information on why the Pueblo was sent on its mission and what steps were taken to protect it.

The special House Armed Services subcommittee hearings came as a Navy board of inquiry in Coronado, Calif., moved into its seventh and possibly last week of investigating the intelligence vessel's Jan. 23, 1968 capture by North Korea.

The committee also will look into possible revisions in the code of conduct which applies to military personnel who are captured by enemy forces.

At the Coronado inquiry, the Pueblo skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, and other crewmen have repeated over and over that the ship was unprepared for a North Korean attack or any hostile actions beyond harassment.

However, last month, Rear Adm. Leslie J. O'Brien said future Pueblo-type incidents should be prevented by a variety of measures the Navy has taken, including increased protection for its intelligence ships, more potent weapons, devices to destroy secret papers and equipment and scuttling systems.

He said these devices, lacking on the Pueblo, can be set off more rapidly than any equipment previously available and can be triggered by "very few people."

Cmdr. Bucher told the Navy court his ship had only axes and sledgehammers to destroy the sensitive intelligence-gathering equipment and that the Navy several times turned down his requests for better gear.

O'Brien also said there has been a general tightening and overhaul of the procedures and rules for control of such ships to assure swifter communication with superiors responsible for sending aid and to give skippers clear guidelines on what to regard as harassment by hostile ships or planes and how to react.

A major point of criticism in Congress and elsewhere has been the lack of warplanes close enough to help the Pueblo.

The subcommittee's inquiry into the code of conduct comes about as a result of the Navy board being told the Pueblo's officers broke the code for American prisoners the day after capture and without being tortured.

The code of conduct was signed by President Eisenhower in 1955 after numerous American servicemen signed confessions in Korean War prison camps. It orders all servicemen to give only their name, rank, serial number and date of birth if captured.

Astronauts' Wives Keep Informed

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With the drama of a flawless launch of their husbands behind them, the Apollo 9 wives settled down today to a calmer but watchful waiting.

"I just intend to sit by the squawk box," said Mrs. Ann Scott, wife of the command module pilot.

She referred to the electronic device by which the conversations between crew members and ground controllers are piped into the astronauts' homes.

Their children clustered at their sides, the wives watched home television sets Monday as the powerful Saturn 5 rocket propelled the spaceship into orbit.

"I want them to remember it as the high point of their lives," Mrs. Clare Schweickart said of her five children, aged 4 to 9.

Mrs. Pat McDivitt said she doubted her children, ranging from 11 to 2, were old enough to fully grasp the significance of the space flight.

The wives delayed the routine post-launch interviews until completion of the delicate docking maneuver that linked the command ship with the "Spider," the vehicle designed to carry two American astronauts to the lunar surface this summer.

Mrs. Scott admitted to being a bit nervous, noting that her husband's emergency landing in Gemini 8 three years ago "made me more aware of all the possibilities."

"I don't mean to say I was terribly apprehensive," she added. "I was a little more prepared for any eventuality."

Mrs. McDivitt said she felt neither apprehension nor concern, "Just a terrific urge for success . . . if I'm apprehensive, I don't know it."

The three wives braved blustery, chilling winds to conduct the interviews, staged separately outside their homes in Nassau Bay, across the street from the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The neighborhood resembled a July 4th festival with American flags fluttering outside most houses as symbols of best wishes for Apollo 9.

Blonde, vivacious Pat McDivitt made no attempt to conceal her elation at receiving a surprise telephone call from President Nixon.

STROKE VICTIM at the age of 4, Donna Kay Howell, now 7, is this year's official Easter Seal Child. After suffering paralysis which left her unable to stand, walk or talk, Donna Kay received treatment at the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center in Tallahassee, Fla. Her speech defect has been corrected and she is recovering use of the affected hand and leg.

'Stolen' House Finally Located

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Charles F. Burris Sr., 62, told police someone stole his seven-room house.

"It was all gone but some trash and some bricks from the chimney" when he paid a Sunday visit to the lot on which the old house—once rented but vacant for six months—had stood, Burris said Monday. He valued the house at $7,500.

Police filled out a stolen house report.

Later, city Building Inspector Dewey Trogden revealed that the house was condemned and torn down last Wednesday. "As a hazard to the public . . . It was in a state of collapse."

No, said Trogden, Burris hadn't been notified—"We couldn't wait . . . he will receive a letter shortly."

Cage Star Seeks Role At SFCC

Randy Williams of Iberia High School has sent in an application to the State Fair Community College for the 1969-70 school year.

You may recognize the name of Randy Williams due to his unlimited basketball ability. Williams is only 5' 11" but he has hands as quick as a cat and moves to match. Roadrunners Coach Fred Wehking expressed pleasure at Williams' intention to attend the local school.

One of the things that Wehking lacked last season was a quick, mobile guard that could consistently run the ball team. Williams could possibly be the answer.

He brings with him not only his ability to run a ball club, but also a 25.0 per game scoring average, one of the best in Central Missouri Class M play. This brings up another weak point in the Roadrunners offense. Even though State Fair lead the nation in junior college team defense with 58.2 points per game, they lacked greatly in outside shooting ability.

Tulsa's Last Hope Gone

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tulsa's late-season collapse in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race was completed Monday night when Wichita whipped the Hurricane, 95-87 in overtime, to end the last slim hope Tulsa had of gaining a playoff.

The Hurricane dropped to 11-5 for its final MVC record, losing 5 of its last 6 league games after leading the chase much of the way.

Drake and Louisville are tied for the lead with 12-3 records going into their final games Thursday night. Drake plays at St. Louis and Louisville at Bradley.

Louisville posted a 93-80 nonconference victory over Bellarmine Monday night, in a game moved up from Saturday night to clear the way for a Valley playoff game that night, if Drake and the Cardinals finish in a dead heat.

Bradley warms up for its crack at Louisville by playing at Cincinnati in the only game on tap tonight involving Valley teams.

Tulsa won its first 10 MVC games to threaten a runaway. Its downfall began in an 83-81 overtime loss at Louisville Feb. 13 and the Hurricane finished with a 19-7 over-all record.

Tulsa built a 16-7 lead as Wichita missed its first 13 shots from the field and fell behind 41-32 by the half.

When Bobby Smith, who managed only 16 points, hit three quick baskets at the outset of the second half, it appeared Tulsa was off to the races with a 47-33 lead 2½ minutes into the second half.

Wichita wound up 7-9 in the Valley and 11-15 over-all.

Louisville, now 19-4 this season, got 24 points and 21 rebounds from Mike Grosso and 23 points from Butch Beard in whipping Bellarmine.

New Rule Affects Babe Ruth

The Rules Committee for Babe Ruth Baseball has made a few changes concerning the pitching schedule for this season.

The new rule for 13-15 year olds reads: "1. A pitcher, regardless of age, may pitch seven innings per calendar week unless he is pitching in the seventh inning of a tie game. He may then pitch an additional three innings in the tie game.

"a. Rule 0.06-1 applies to all games regardless of when played. This includes rescheduled, rained-out, postponed and make-up games.

"b. If a pitcher delivers one pitch in an inning he shall be charged for one inning pitched.

"2. A calendar week is a period of seven successive days, Monday through Sunday.

"3. A pitcher must have two full days rest between pitching assignments. (A player pitching on Sunday cannot pitch again until Wednesday.)

"4. Games in which an ineligible pitcher has been used shall be declared forfeited."

The new 16-18 year old pitching regulation says, "Although there are no written restrictions as to the use of pitchers in 16-18 local league play, Babe Ruth Baseball strongly cautions that extreme care be used so that an individual player is not over extended, i.e., protect the player's arm."

Pitching rules for tournaments is the same for both the 13-15 and 16-18 levels of competition. It says, "No pitcher in tournament play shall be allowed to pitch in two games in succession within the same tournament level. However, a pitcher may pitch in the final game of one tournament and pitch in the first game of the next tournament level."

Camping Schedule Announced for Year

WARSAW — The Kaysinger Kampers of Warsaw approved their 1969 camping schedule at the first regular meeting of the year. Included for this year is: Knob Noster State Park, April 19; State Campvention at Arrow Rock, May 2-4; Pomme De Terre, June 21; Bennett Springs, July 19; Lake Tanneycomo, Aug. 16; State Campvention in September; and October 18, Van Meter State Park near Marshall.

Otterville B-Team Tournament Opens

The Pilot Grove B team and the baby Bunceton Dragons each won games in the Otterville "B" team tourney Monday night.

Pilot Grove took a 38-29 victory over Boonville Catholic. Sam Wood was high point man with 15 markers, while Mark Wielghs had 10 for Boonville.

Bunceton took the measure of Stover, 34-28, with Gary Lowe leading the way, scoring 16 points. Gary Boeschen netted eight for Stover.

KC Site for 1969 Drag Championships

KANSAS CITY — The American Hot Rod Association has selected Kansas City International Raceway for the site of the 1969 Drag World Fuel and Gas Championship April 25, 26, and 27.

Other competition and events of major money consideration include the Grand Nationals set for May 23, 24, and 25 at Detroit Dragway in Detroit; the Spring Nationals at Bristol International Speedway in Bristol, Tenn., June 6, 7, and 8; Summer Nationals, Aug. 15, 16, and 17 at New York National Speedway in Long Island, N.Y.; and the big World Championships at Green Valley Raceway, Aug. 20-24, in Dallas-Ft. Worth, Tex.

The drag racing spotlight then switches back to Kansas City, Oct. 3, 4, and 5 for the World Points Finale.

Royals Play Rookie Against Montreal Team

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Rookie left-hander Bill Butler will be the first pitcher to take the mound for the expansionist Kansas City Royals in their first baseball game against another major league team.

Butler, 21-year-old drafted from the Detroit Tigers' organization, was named Monday by Manager Jor Gordon to pitch the first three innings of Thursday's exhibition game here with the Montreal Expos. The game is the first for the Royals, aside from intra-squad tilts.

Following Butler, Gordon said, right-handers Don O'Riley and Orlando Pena will also try to go three innings. Bill Faul, Dave Wickersham and Tom Burgmeier will be in the bullpen if needed.

The Royals planned another intra-squad game today—their last one—and will hold a workout Wednesday.

Gordon gave the players Monday off.

Veteran relief pitcher Moe Drabowsky checked into camp and worked out on his own—doing some running and light throwing.

Big Eight Has Three Players On Honor Team

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Three Big Eight Conference players were named to the first Academic All—American football team for 1968 and five more were selected to the second team the College Sports Information Directors Association announced Monday.

To be eligible, players must maintain at least a B average in the classroom.

Names to the first team were Dave Morgan, Kansas defensive back who was placed at linebacker; Carl Garber, Missouri linebacker put at defensive middle guard, and Eddie Hinton, Oklahoma flanker put at offensive halfback.

On the second team were guard Ken Wertzberger of Kansas, end Dave Jones of Kansas State and halfback Dick Davis of Nebraska on offense and end Bill Schmitt of Missouri and halfback Steve Barrett of Oklahoma on defense.

English Team Helps Open Spurs' Season

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Spurs of the North American Soccer League announced Monday that the Wolverhampton Wanderers of England will be here May 4 to open the Spurs 1969 season in Municipal Stadium.

The Wanderers will represent the Spurs in a 10-game competition in May to be known as the International Cup Tournament. Other foreign teams will represent the other NASL teams—Dallas, Baltimore, Atlanta and St. Louis—in the Cup matches.

UCLA Again Tops AP Basketball Poll

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

For the third time in six years, UCLA has finished on top in The Associated Press' final major college basketball poll. The Bruins overwhelmed runner-up LaSalle in the balloting although the streaking Explorers from Philadelphia managed a single first-place vote.

Just as had been predicted in the AP's preseason poll, the Bruins have swept toward an unbeaten campaign, scoring 24 victories although their most recent one last Saturday was in overtime against California.

UCLA also wound up in the No. 1 position in the final polls of 1964 and 1967. Last season, the Bruins placed second to Houston after the Cougars upset them in midseason. The Cougars this year managed only a 16-10 mark without star Elvin Hayes and did not place among the first 20.

UCLA collected 44 first-place votes in the final 1968-69 poll of 45 sports writers and broadcasters. LaSalle, third a week ago, climbed one notch to second with one vote for the top spot. In points, UCLA led 898 to 724. La Salle wound up with a 23-1 record.

Santa Clara, 24-1, advanced one place to a final No. 3 while North Carolina, beaten last week by Duke, skipped to fourth.

Davidson held fifth position. Rounding out the Top Ten were Purdue, Kentucky, St. John's, N.Y., Duquesne and Villanova. Pennsylvania thus placed three teams among the first 10—La Salle, Duquesne and Villanova.

Purdue, a winner over Michigan State and Iowa, climbed three places to sixth on the last ballot. Kentucky, a loser to Vanderbilt last week, slipped from sixth to seventh while St. John's, upset by Notre Dame in overtime, also fell a notch to eighth.

Duquesne moved up from 10th to ninth and Villanova from 12th to 10th. South Carolina dropped out of the Top Ten, slipping from eighth to 13th after losing to North Carolina and North Carolina State.

Drake, unranked last week, soared to 11th place on a 21-4 record and a share of the Missouri Valley Conference lead.

The final Top 20 with first place votes, season records through Saturday, March 1 and total points for the first 15 choices on a basis of 20-18-16-14-12-9-8-etc. basis:

1.	UCLA (44)	24-0	898
2.	LaSalle (1)	23-1	724
3.	Santa Clara	26-1	650
4.	North Carolina	22-3	606
5.	Davidson	25-2	573
6.	Purdue	18-4	665
7.	Kentucky	20-4	386
8.	St. John's, N.Y.	22-4	335
9.	Duquesne	19-3	292
10.	Villanova	21-4	203
11.	Drake	21-4	159
12.	New Mexico State	23-2	154

S-C, Wentworth Open Regional

The Smith-Cotton High School varsity cagers of Coach Paul Schwartz will face Wentworth Military Academy in the opening contest of the Class L Regional Tournament at Lexington at 7:30 p.m. today.

Starters against Wentworth will be Nash and Lewis at forwards; Tornquist at center; and Woolery and Logan at guards.

If the Tigers beat Wentworth, they will then face the winner of the Fort Osage-Excelsior Springs game at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Knight, Blaine Find Success With Trout

Trout season opened this past weekend across the state and a couple of local boys were blessed with opening season luck.

Fred Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Knight, Sedalia, caught a 3 pound 1 ounce lunker Sunday at Bennett Springs. More important than just catching a lunker at Bennett, Fred was the first Sedalian to get to the 1969 Lunker Board.

Jim Blaine, 1103 State Fair Blvd., faired better in the numbers department — he had a total of nine fish over the weekend while Fred managed a total of four.

New Riches For St. Louis Team

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Bob Gibson is now the highest paid player in the history of the St. Louis Cardinals and General Manager Bing Devine has taken a giant step forward in making the Cardinals one big, and expensive, happy family.

Gibson, who led the assault on the Cardinal treasury, took away an estimated $125,000 after agreeing to terms Monday in a telephone conversation with Devine.

Devine was to be back in St. Petersburg today after handing out a total of about $425,000 to six players in a brief St. Louis visit. The other players who reaped the rewards Monday of the Cardinals second straight National League pennant were outfielder Lou Brock, an estimated $87,000; outfielder Curt Flood, $88,000; third baseman Mike Shannon, $52,000; pitcher Nelson Briles, $38,000, and pitcher Ray Washburn, $35,000.

The only remaining front line players unsigned are shortstop Dal Maxvill and second baseman Julian Javier.

Javier is to confer with Devine and Vice President Stan Musial today in St. Petersburg.

Maxvill met with Devine Monday, but only said he would think about the Cardinals' latest offer. He reportedly has asked for about $50,000.

Gibson declined to discuss his salary.

"I don't even tell my wife what I'm making," Gibson said.

"Athletes seem to be the only ones in the world who are criticized for not revealing their pay," Gibson added. "Young men in other professions make fabulous salaries and no one pays any attention."

Gibson's performance last year, though, was attention getting.

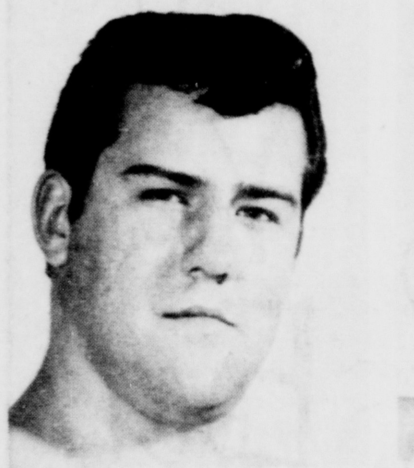
The bulldog, 33-year-old right-hander posted a 22-9 mark, which included 15 straight victories, pitched 13 shutouts, five in a row and etched a new National League earned run average record of 1.12.

Gibson's new contract makes him the highest paid Cardinal ever. Musial had reached $100,000 in 1958.

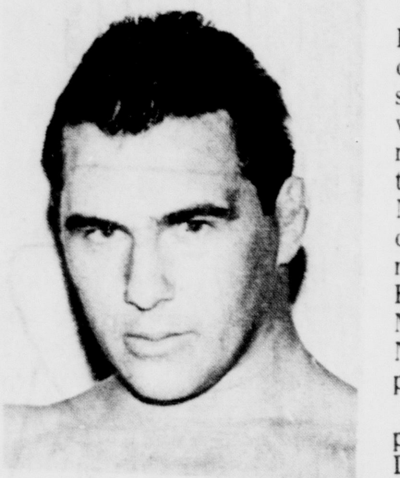
Even with only one $100,000-plus player, the Cardinals have one of the highest-paid teams in the history of the sport.

In addition to the players signed Monday, first baseman Orlando Cepeda previously signed for the same estimated $90,000 he made last year, and outfielder Vada Pinson and catcher Tim McCarver are believed in the $60,000 neighborhood.

Addition of Kamata To Strengthen Team



Tommy Martin



Rudy Martin

Addition of stocky Tor Kamata, 240-pound veteran from Japan, as a partner figures to further strengthen Tornado Murdock's bid for the top roughing role in Midlands wrestling.

The two will pool talents tonight to form a "wrecking crew" which will face the talented pair of Tommy and Rudy Martin in the feature of a four-match Convention Hall ring card. Action will get under way at 8:15.

Murdock, a hard-hitting 265-pounder, has demonstrated his roughing prowess throughout Mo-Kan area rings and is confident he rates as the roughest heavyweight on the regional scene.

The Martins hope to refute this with a strong offensive showing of their own. They've had considerable success as a team and individually. For a long period, Tommy reigned as Central States champion, a condition that served only to irritate Murdock further.

Kamata's unusual style and proficiency with judo and karate lend a unique mixture to the team lineup. A veteran of many years in the game, the solid, serious heavyweight is considered a hard test for any opponent.

Midgets will be in action in the semifinal. Like the team match, it will be over the best of three-falls distance. Pitted are Fuzzy Cupid and Pee Wee Wilson.

Rudy Martin and Murdock will have double duty on the card. They're also scheduled in the special match.

Ronnie Etchison will go opposite Frank Hester in the opener.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Teen-Age Patient Uses Spool Knitting Therapy

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am a teen-ager confined to bed recuperating from a spinal operation. I enjoy doing needlework and the spool knitting that Mrs. M. R. wanted to know about. I hold a spool with six nails in its top in the left hand, and take wool in the right hand. Drop one end through the spool hole and allow two or three inches of wool to hang from the bottom. Grasp wool near the top of the spool, with the right hand, and make loops around each of the nails, going from left to right until all the nails have loops around them. You are ready to start knitting.

Place yarn around the outer side of the nail facing you and make sure it is above the loop. Insert a large needle in loop and draw it over the yarn and the nail, and pull bottom string. Continue in this manner until knitted tube is the correct length. To change colors of yarn, make a knot so that it will come in the center of the spool. When finished, lifts loops from nails, draw the end of the wool through the loops and pull tight.

These knitted reins can be sewed together to make pot holders, round mats, circles for afghans, hats, belts and suspenders.—BEVERLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know if any of the readers have ever used an electric blender for churning a small amount of butter. I read all the advertisements for blenders but that use is never suggested and I would like to know about it.—HAROLD

DEAR POLLY—I made an entertaining and inexpensive toy for my baby grandson. I saved the plastic lids, all sizes and colors, from pressure cans and made a hole in the center of each with a nail I heated on the stove burner. Hold the hot nail with pliers. Several such lids are strung on a cord to make a gay and noisy toy which can be hung where baby can watch it or hit it.—ERMA

DEAR POLLY—To solve that problem of mounting stacks of ironing between ironing days, I bought two very large plastic garbage cans and labeled one "Guys" and the other "Dolls." If any of my seven kids feels like ironing their own clothes, they are easily found.—MRS. R. W.

Drury, Washburn Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defending district NAIA champions Drury and Washburn posted victories in playoff action Monday night to take another step toward repeat appearances in the national small college tournament in Kansas City next week.

Drury, which represented Missouri's District 16 a year ago, beat Missouri—St. Louis, 77-64, Monday night in the opening contest of a best-of-3 playoff to determine the state winner. The two teams move to Springfield tonight for the second game, and if Drury wins it, the playoff ends. If St. Louis wins, a third game will be played Wednesday night in Springfield.

In Kansas' District 10 tournament at Emporia, Washburn nipped Emporia State, 55-54, on Frank Dexter's shot with four seconds to go, while Friends University clipped St. Benedict's 64-63 in overtime, on Wayne Whitcomb's shot eight seconds from the end.

Washburn and Friends meet at 8 p.m. today in Emporia for the Kansas championship.

In the only other collegiate action Monday night, Lincoln University wound up its season with a sparkling 18-6 record, beating Augustana of South Dakota, 93-86, at Jefferson City, Mo.

Southwest Missouri State is host to an NCAA college division regional tournament Friday and Saturday at Springfield. Southwest plays St. Olaf of Northfield, Minn., while South Dakota State takes on St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minn. Winner of that meet advances to the NCAA college division tourney in Evansville, Ind., next week.

Expensive Trip for Bush

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two round trip tickets on the norning flight from St. Petersburg, Fla., to St. Louis cost Cardinals boss Gussie Busch $425,000—give or take a dollar.

But Busch and air travelers Bing Devine and Stan Musial figure the trip was worth the price. And the six stray Redbirds who've rejoined the flock are living proof.

General Manager Devine and club Vice President Musial flew from the Cards' spring training base to St. Louis early Monday and returned with 1969 salary acceptances from half a dozen star performers, including Cy Young Award winner Bob Gibson.

The Cards' dynamic front office duo lined up Lou Brock, Curt Flood, Mike Shannon, Nelson Briles and Ray Washburn after brief talks in St. Louis. Devine then reached agreement with Gibson in a phone call to the pitching ace's Omaha, Neb., home.

Gibson, who won 22 games and posted a record 1.12 earned run average in the Cardinals' pennant drive, reportedly will receive $125,000—a boost of about $35,000 over last year and the highest salary in the club's history. Musial's $100,000 pact in 1958 was the previous high for the Cardinals.

It's estimated center fielder Flood will get $88,000, left fielder Brock, $87,000, third baseman Shannon, $52,000, and pitchers Briles and Washburn, $38,000 and $35,000 respectively.

The six agreements left two Cardinals—shortstop Dal Maxvill and second baseman Julian Javier—still unsigned. Javier was expected to arrive in camp today and Devine and Musial were back to welcome him—pens in hand.

Several other clubs were encouraged by the signing, or appearances, of key players Monday. But the Houston Astros and Montreal Expos were anxiously awaiting a settlement of a sticky situation brought on by Donn Clendenon's abrupt retirement last week.

Montreal had traded Clendenon and Jesus Alou to the Astros for Rusty Staub. Monday, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn requested that Staub and Alou be kept out of uniform until a meeting is held to resolve the matter. The trade could be nullified, or the Expos could be obliged to deliver another player to Houston as a replacement for Clendenon.

"Scratching the whole trade would do us irreparable harm," said Expos President John McHale.

Meanwhile, the Expos are seeking a replacement from Philadelphia for pitcher Larry Jackson, who announced his retirement after being drafted by the National League expansion club.

Among Monday's other signees were slugging first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore, who came to terms for a reported $45,000, leaving pitcher Tom Phoebus as the Orioles' lone holdout. Pitchers Rick Wise and Woody Fryman and infielder Tony Taylor signed with the Phillies, reliever Diego Segui with the new Seattle Pilots and pitcher Ray Sadecki, catcher Jack Hiatt and infielder Tito Fuentes with the San Francisco Giants.

Late camp arrivals included Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente, Washington's Mike Epstein and San Francisco's Willie McCovey, the NL home run-RBI king who reportedly is seeking a raise to the $60,000-$75,000 level.

Cincinnati's Pete Rose, the NL batting champion, is holding out for an $85,000-$90,000 salary. Detroit's Willie Horton is asking for a $100,000 pact. And Minnesota still lists 10 holdouts.

Others missing from their clubs' camps include Matty Alou of Pittsburgh; Frank Howard and Ken McMullen of Wasington; Juan Marichal of San Francisco, Rich Rollins and Darrell Brandon of Seattle; Joe Torre of Atlanta and Al Downing of the New York Yankees.

K-State, Tigers Out of the Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

How can you win a basketball game and eliminate yourself from an NCAA playoff berth?

Kansas State did it Monday night, beating Missouri 60-55 to knock both themselves and the Tigers out of contention for the Big Eight's berth in next week's NCAA regional tournament at Manhattan, Kan.

The Wildcats, now 8-5 in the conference, trail Kansas and Colorado, both 9-4, with one game to play. K-State, which plays at Kansas in its finale Saturday night, can tie for the championship—if both Kansas and Colorado lose—but the last team to represent the conference in the NCAA is automatically eliminated in event of a three or four-way tie.

Since K-State played in the NCAA last year, it would be the first one flagged to the sidelines in a multiple tie.

If the Wildcats beat Kansas, and Colorado also loses against Missouri in Boulder, Colo., Saturday night, then a three-way tie—and possibly a four-way tie if Iowa State wins its last two games this week—would evolve.

And if Kansas State beats Kansas, and Colorado wins, the Buffaloes claim the Big Eight championship and NCAA berth outright.

It is this last possibility that was on Wildcat Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons' mind Monday night after K-State trimmed Missouri by five points.

"The pressure is going to be on them," Fitzsimmons said of K-State's game at KU. "We'll go over to Lawrence and be relaxed, because we can't go anywhere.

"Kansas is the only Big Eight team we haven't beaten this year, and we'd like to beat them."

Wheeler Hughes sparked a Kansas State spurt early in the first half, scoring 8 of the Wildcats' 16 points as they built a 46-36 lead with 12½ minutes to go after leading only 30-28 at halftime.

Missouri pecked away at that lead and tied it 53-53 with 3:19 left on Pete Helmbock's turnaround jumper.

Then Jerry Venable hit two baskets in just over a minute for a 57-53 reading and Missouri never caught up again. Hughes' two free throws with 12 seconds left iced it.

Hughes had 15 points to pace K-State, while Helmbock matched that for Missouri.

Thursday night Iowa State goes to Oklahoma and Nebraska to Oklahoma State.

The regular season ends Saturday with Kansas State at Kansas, Missouri at Colorado, Iowa State at Oklahoma State and Nebraska at Oklahoma.

S.E.C. Title Goes To Kentucky Again

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kentucky has its NCAA tournament berth and the rest of the Southeastern Conference also has its NCAA—No Chance At All.

That's what it must seem like to the also-rans after Kentucky won the SEC championship for the 24th time in Adolph Rupp's 39 years at the helm with a 90-86 victory over Auburn Monday night.

"This championship is just as important as the first one," said Rupp, "and it feels just as good. I've never seen a happier bunch of boys."

The seventh-ranked Wildcats trailed 66-58 with 11 minutes left but rallied behind Dan Issel, Mike Casey and Mike Pratt, who scored 34, 23 and 18 points, respectively.

Three other members of The Associated Press' Top Twenty teams were in action. Marquette, ranked 14th, got by the Air Force 69-57 and 15th-rated Louisville downed Bellarmine 93-80, but Creighton stunned 17th-ranked Notre Dame 79-74.

Sophomore Dean Meminger paced Marquette with 16 points as the NCAA-bound Warriors outscored the Air Force by six points in each half.

Louisville, still in the Missouri Valley Conference running but a more likely participant in the National Invitation Tournament, drubbed Bellarmine as Mike Grosso scored 24 points and Butch Beard added 23.

Creighton's 1-2 punch of Wally Anderzunas and Bob Portman kayoed Notre Dame, another NCAA team, with 28 and 20 points, respectively. Portman's layup with 6½ minutes put the Blue Jays ahead to stay.

Three more tourney-bound clubs played Monday night and all came through unscathed. Weber State, NCAA-bound as the Big Sky kings, edged Montana State 86-84 in overtime. NIT entrants Rutgers and Southern Illinois won respectively over Gettysburg 92-77 and Indiana State 75-69. Rutgers has a 20-3 record and 15 straight wins.

A couple of tourney hopefuls were not so lucky. Tulsa lost any chance for the Missouri Valley crown by blowing a 14-point lead in the second half and bowing to Wichita State in overtime 95-87. Greg Carney sparked the upset with 37 points.

Kansas State knocked Missouri out of the Big Eight race with a 60-55 triumph as Jerry Venable hit two key baskets in the closing minutes.

But Morehead State gained a tie for Ohio Valley honors by beating East Tennessee 77-67 behind Willie Jackson's 23 points and Jerry Conley's 20. The Eagles will play off against Murray State Wednesday night at Bowling Green, Ky., for the title and an NCAA berth.

Tennessee, runner-up in the SEC and a likely NIT participant, stopped Vanderbilt 70-60. Florida, another SEC team with NIT designs, whipped West Virginia 75-57. Boyd Welsch led the winners with 24 points and big Neal Walk had 20.

Elsewhere, Austin Peay surprised Western Kentucky 84-80. Long Island U. held off Seton Hall 62-56 and Wake Forest nipped Virginia 87-84.

And the nation's leading scorer, Pete Maravich, gunned in 55 points to lead Louisiana State past Mississippi State 99-89.

Navy Board Sees a Tape Of Fatal Dive

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Aquanaut Robert Barth, speaking calmly, was the narrator as a Navy board of inquiry saw a video tape of a dive 610 feet into the Pacific Ocean that cost a colleague's life.

A camera remotely controlled from the surface picked up Barth and Berry L. Cannon, the death victim, as they left a diving capsule and began swimming toward the leaking Sealab 3 habitat last Feb. 17.

Barth was shown arriving on the diving platform. He attempted to open the hatch. It wouldn't budge so he began detaching a crow bar from the side of the habitat.

Cannon was to the right of the picture, out of view, he said.

"It took me approximately one minute to get the crow bar loose," Barth told the board of inquiry Monday. "When I turned around—that's when I noticed Cannon was in trouble."

Barth, 39, a chief warrant officer, took part in two previous Sealab un
Sealab undersea licing experiments. He was the leader of a team of divers—Cannon, 33, John F. Reaves, 40, and Richard M. Blackburn, 30—sent to the bottom twice in an attempt to stop a leak that threatened to flood the habitat.

An autopsy disclosed that Cannon died from carbon dioxide poisoning. One of four breathing rigs used by the team has been found to be lacking chemicals necessary to filter carbon dioxide, but the board has yet to determine which apparatus was worn by Cannon during the fatal dive.

The inquiry will continue later in the week.

Oil Merger Given O.K. By Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has given a reluctant and conditional go-ahead to what may be the biggest oil company merger of all time—the consolidation of Atlantic Richfield and Sinclair.

Stringent conditions imposed by the government would allow for future restoration of the two separate companies if court appeals opposing the merger are successful.

The proposed merger, agreed to by the two firms last Oct. 31, would link the nation's 10th and 11th largest oil companies.

At the beginning of 1968, Atlantic Richfield listed assets of $1.9 billion and Sinclair had assets of $1.8 billion.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. (AP) — Matchmaker Sam Silverman announced today the signing of Al Romano, New England welterweight boxing champion, of North Adams, and Jim Drury of Toledo, Ohio, for a 10-round non title bout March 15 at the Armory. Romano has won four straight fights in his hometown.

Say Purchases For Colleges Should Stop

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Four state colleges asked the Cole County Circuit Court Monday to prevent state purchasing agent James Schaffner from buying goods for them.

Circuit Judge James T. Riley issued a temporary restraining order and set April 7 for a hearing.

The four schools are Southwest Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, Central State of Warrensburg, Northwest State of Maryville and Northeast State of Kirksville.

They questioned Schaffner's right to control the use of non-appropriated funds. Schaffner takes the position the law requires him to handle purchases of more than $50 for the state schools.

Honored By House

The House paid tribute to Lewis Deschler, its parliamentarian for more than 40 years, on his 64th birthday Monday in Washington. Speaker McCormack touched off a standing ovation for Deschler as he told the House of his birthday and called him not only the world's greatest parliamentarian, but "one of the outstanding men of all time." Humor In Lavole's Talk to Sorosis

There is a great deal of humor in the talks made by Jean-Louis Lavole, American Field Service Exchange Student, from Rennes, France, at various clubs. This was particularly so at the meeting of the Sorosis Club held Monday afternoon at Heard Memorial Club House.

Telling of when he first came to Sedalia he said he couldn't speak English nor understand it very well. Everybody talked so fast and when he asked them to repeat what they said in hopes they would slow down, they merely talked louder and just as fast.

He really was responsible for his plight, he said for in his eagerness to come to this country, he had a girl from England, whom he said spoke perfect English, help him with his essay on why he wanted to come to America and it was such a good essay written in English that he was selected. But now he does real fine speaking English and perhaps writing it, too.

He searched for the word "hospitable," however, in trying to describe the American people, but unable to say it came up with something much better: "you always find the open door here."

In talking about the wine in France, Jean-Louis stressed that the people of this country had the wrong idea of wine drinking in France. Here he pointed out that the young people of this country drink because it is forbidden and they get drunk. In France it is never forbidden and so the young don't drink too much. He illustrated his point by saying when he was forbidden to smoke, he smoked, but when he was given permission he quit, and now doesn't smoke.

The only time he was drunk, Jean-Louis said, was when he was five years old. That was when the family lived in Africa for a time and his parents had had a party where they served champagne. It was the custom not to drink all the champagne in the glass, so when Jean-Louis went to the kitchen for a drink of water he thought it was water in the glasses, so he poured all the champagne into one glass and drank it. I took hom three days to get over it, he said.

Whe asked if they had a draft in France, he stated they did, but only for 18 months.

At the beginning of his talk Jean-Louis showed pictures of his family, buildings, churches and castles in France. The latter, he explained, for American tourists. The cowboys are mostly gypsies and he had a picture of a group of wild horses which he said the cowboys catch and tame. He had pictures, too, of the gypsy celebration, the women in their colorful clothes, and the annual church service.

Among the pictures, also, was one of bulls. They have bull fights in France but not like the ones in Spain for in France they do not kill the bulls, they only have fun with them.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Carl Yates, current topics chairman. Jean-Louis is living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gray, Jr., while in Sedalia attending Smith-Cotton High School.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. William E. Hurlbut, president.

In the absence of the program chairman, Mrs. John Ryan announced that the next meeting will be on March 17, at which the speaker will be Mrs. Ralph H. Jennings, Prairie Village, Kan., Her subject will be "Seven Baths."

Repeat Vows In January

Mrs. G. W. Matthias

OTTAWA, KAN. — The Chapel at Ottawa University, was the setting for the January wedding of Miss Kathleen Jane Riney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lyman Riney, Sedalia, and Garry Wayne Matthias, Ottawa.

Arrangements of yellow carnations and lemon leaves flanked the altar for the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Ted Nissen, Colonial Presbyterian Church, Kansas City, Mo. Music was provided by Nancy Bosche, organist.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a white floor-length A-line gown edged with lace at neckline, sleeves and skirt. Her veil was elbow-length and she carried a bouquet of white gardenias on lemon leaves.

Maid of honor, Deanna Leach, Wellsville, Kan., and bridesmaid Mrs. Ron Yingling, Ottawa, wore floor-length avocado green crepe gowns and carried nosegays of yellow Fuji chrysanthemums.

David Matthias, Independence, served as best man and groomsman was Larry Matthias, Horton, Kan. Ushers were Robert and Tim Riney, brothers of the bride, and Ron Yingling.

Mrs. Riney wore a grey suit styled with double breasted jacket and pleated skirt and turquoise accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the University Union Building. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier cake encircled with yellow sweetheart roses and topped with a nosegay of yellow roses.

The new Mrs. Matthias a graduate of Beaufort High School, Beaufort, S. S., is a senior at Ottawa U. majoring in elementary education.

The groom graduated from Atchison Country Community High School, Effingham, Kan. He is employed by Weidner Mobil Service and is a salesman for Jayhawk Insurance.

The couple resides at 717 East 10th, Ottawa.

IN THE NEWS

HOPEDALE, Mass. (AP) — W. Chester Sanborn was unopposed Monday for town tree warden—one of six positions he holds.

In this community of about 4,500, he is also chief of police, keeper of the lockup, constable, superintendent of insect pest control and animal and slaughtering inspector.

MARY ANN KAHRS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Kahrs, Smithton, has been selected Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for Smithton R-6 School. Miss Kahrs is a member of the volleyball team, cheerleader and plays flute in the school band. She is also a member of National Honor Society and Future Homemakers of America. She plans to enter the University of Missouri next fall and major in elementary education.

A Long-Time Offender Gets Three Years

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Barnard Edward Sewell, 48, stood before Judge Elmo B. Hunter in U.S. District Court Monday and drew a three-year prison sentence for his 13th conviction, dating back to 1940.

"I don't believe I've ever had anyone quite like you before me," said the judge.

Sewell's record shows convictions for burglary, attempted robbery, robbery and writing a threatening letter to a sheriff. Seven of his convictions stem from burglarizing, robbing or attempting to burglarize postoffices.

Sewell pleaded guilty to attempted burglary Jan. 16 of the Carthage, Mo., postoffice. The Carthage episode came just 16 days after Sewell completed a five-year prison term—for postoffice burglary.

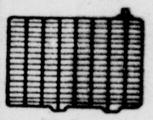
IMMEDIATE REPLACEMENT BATTERY GUARANTEE

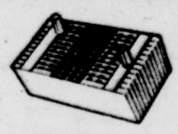
If battery is found defective and will not hold a charge:
(1) FREE replacement within 90 days of purchase;
(2) After 90 days Wards will replace the battery, charging you a pro-rated amount of the current no-trade-in selling price for each month from date of purchase.

HERE'S WHY XHD IS FIVE WAYS BETTER:

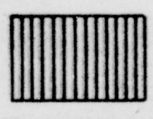


Grids give greater resistance to overcharge.

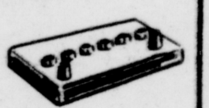
Super active lead assures greater starting power.



Plates and separators are locked in place.



Mechanical separators have extra strength.



One-piece bonded cover eliminates leakage.
